AUTHOR'S NOTE

The fact that you are reading this book is a sure sign that you recognize that there is more to life and the world in which we live, than the overt and widely-accepted version that we've been given to explain our existence. If that describes you and you understand that the only way to be truly free is to know the truth, so you can make proper decisions for your life, then you should know that the discoveries that you will learn about in this book comprise only one small piece of a vast ancient puzzle that I would like to share with you.

For many years I have engaged in some of the most intense linguistic research imaginable. My findings have resulted in many blessings including the opportunity to give lectures, to be the featured guest on dozens of popular radio shows around the world, to write many books and papers and to even be approached to appear on two episodes on the History Channel. I tell you these things to simply make you aware of the power and importance of the ancient secrets I've discovered through my research; and to help you realize why, exactly certain groups have gone to such great lengths to keep you from knowing the truth by providing their own, contrived alternate reality. One thing I know for certain, after uncovering one fascinating hidden truth after another that has never been unveiled before, is that the people of the world have been lied to about many all-important issues; and those lies have resulted in innumerable personal and societal problems.

Whether the problem is depression, disease, divorce, debt, disaster, war, famine or plague, the only solution that exists is to gain knowledge of the truth; and that is what I am here to help you discover as I have for thousands of other individuals.

This book, as with all of my writings, has absolutely nothing to do with my opinion. Furthermore, none of my findings are based on personal interpretation. What you will find in this or any of my writings are my discoveries of ancient and highly-important truths that were buried long, long ago by a certain group that created a code, wrapped it inside of an enigma and buried it within various ancient temples around the globe in order to prevent you from finding and understanding the mystery of your existence and the world in which you live; and how to find that code, along with everything else that I've been blessed to discover through many years of research, is literally not available from any other source.

If you walk with me a bit, I promise to guide you through the maze of life and give you the keys to unlock the mysteries that have prevented you from learning the truth. If that sounds refreshing to you, then this is where we will begin.

The world is full of mystery, yet learning how to uncover the crucial clues that allow us to understand the world's mysteries, is extremely difficult. I know this full well as I personally tried for many years to find the truth using traditional methods, to no avail. Even when I finally figured out how to go about lifting the veil of secrecy that has covered the truth for thousands of years, however, the process was extraordinarily time-consuming. This is why I needed to create my own method of exegesis or language research, in order to cut through the linguistic clutter that had been intentionally thrown into the path leading to the truth. To my knowledge, the methods I've developed are used exclusively by myself and the members of my Learning Network, to whom I teach them.

If you decide that you would like to learn the methods I reveal for sleuthing out the truth, you are welcome to do so by joining us at www.InnerCircle.us. When you take the time to read my books, watch my videos and listen to my lectures at the Inner Circle, you will also be able to obtain answers, for the first time ever, that have been long-concealed; and believe me when I say that this is when life gets very exciting.

One of the reasons for the void of truth present within human consciousness, is because the reality of our existence has been intentionally buried (interred) beneath layers of lies by those who have interr-upted the truth of history with the current version that they have systematically inserted over time; and as strange as this might sound, it is a fact.

The commonly-accepted methods of exegesis, (meaning the methods of understanding the meanings of words and therefore, the message within a language), have also conveniently been provided by these same interr-upters of history. Unfortunately, these methods have become the standard used by all scholars, theologians and linguists today, which is why the lies are so prolific and have become the accepted version of history.

When we blindly follow suit and try to uncover the truth in this same way, or listen to the answers given by those who have, whether from universities, religious institutions, textbooks, documentaries, YouTube videos, Google searches etc., we find ourselves being spoon-fed the false replacement history that these interrupters, themselves have provided, rather than the accurate version that will enable us to see and understand things clearly. This is because they have known, from the beginning, that the only way to keep humanity enslaved, is to keep humanity in the dark, which is where the world has found itself, today.

The only way we can be free, therefore, just as the ancient teachers told us, is to find ways to uncover and expose the truth so we can know it and thereby obtain our freedom, which was always meant to be ours.

This is what I've done for tens of thousands of hours, for more than a decade.

When I'm engaging in exegesis, I use the language that best fits the context, because the context is the all-important factor when trying to figure out what is really being said. I used to think that my research needed to be confined to the language in which a text was written, because that is what I was taught all through my graduate and post graduate studies, including my years in Seminary. If for instance, I was dealing with a passage written in Hebrew, I would dig down to the root of the Hebrew. If I was dealing with a passage written in Aramaic or Greek or Arabic, I would do the same. The problem was, this method left me with far too many unanswered questions and sometimes with answers that simply didn't make any sense at all; and this is why the world is in such chaos, today. (And if you're wondering if you need to know these languages yourself, to find the truth, don't worry. The answer is no, you do not. I will not only teach you what I've found without you having to do any research, but will also show you how to do research yourself for topics you are interested in, without having to learn any languages or technical jargon, whatsoever. This is what my research and the Inner Circle are all about…providing you with the long-hidden keys you need to unlock the truth.

INTRODUCTION

Getting out of The Box

One day while I was doing research, it hit me. All of the great thinkers, inventors, movers and shakers that have made a positive impact throughout history, never did so by operating within the commonly-accepted parameters provided by society. I knew that in order to find the truth that was buried, I too, needed to step outside of the traditional methods of research and seek the truth at all cost, rather than simply seek answers within the confines of that short-sighted and misleading system of exegesis.

When I began to venture into new territory and risk the dismantling of my current paradigm in order to obtain the truth, things began to become crystal clear. This is the point at which I began to make some fascinating and key discoveries.

What I first discovered was that the all-important, ancient texts were not written by those that history tells us they were, but that they were actually coded by the creators of the code, which I explain in detail at The Inner Circle. This profound insight helped me understand the next important fact. This was, regardless of the language with which an ancient text is written, the truth buried beneath that language (code), can and often should be understood by applying a different and sometimes more ancient language (code).

The reason that this can and should be done in this way is because the code of truth woven into a specific passage, is not captive to the specific language with which that passage was written, (as is taught today), nor is it understandable within the overt, surface context; and this is because the truth and the proper context, have been woven throughout all of the languages, like a tapestry and must therefore be pieced together, like a puzzle.

Thirdly, determining which language should be used is only possible when a proper context is applied, which is something I make very clear all throughout my writings. Another word for context is story and an easier way to understand this concept is if we look at it in terms of a building. If the first story of a building is crooked, then any other story that is built on top of that foundational story will be crooked; and eventually the whole building will fall. This is why the earth and the institutions within it, including families are crumbling, today; they have unwittingly based their ideals on an ancient crooked story and have proceeded, en-masse to build upon that faulty foundation. If you read with care, what you will find in this and other books I've written will help tremendously to straighten any skewed paradigms in your own life that might be a result of living in this corrupt society, based on these same ideals.

Fourthly, I discovered that the actual context that is found on the surface, as the text is written is never an accurate one and the true context is always, without exception, hidden beneath layers of allegory and symbolism, the understanding of which has eluded scholars for thousands of years. This is primarily because they have not understood the first three points above, but also because the methods they employ fall under a system called Hermeneutics, which, unbeknownst to them, stems from the figure Hermes who is the primary figure upon whom Hermetic societies such as Freemasonry and the Illuminati are based. Those techniques, like so many other commonly-accepted practices contain truth, but are ultimately meant to deceive and distract from the whole, all-important truth that sets us free.

Fifthly, I've learned that when it comes to choosing the proper language to apply to the right context, one in particular has been more elucidating than the rest.

What I've found is that the real answers, the ones that tend to raise the hair on the back of your neck or bring a mist to your eye, because something changes inside of you when you hear them, have proven to be mostly available within the oldest written language known to man; the Sumerian Cuneiform.

Other than the reasons listed above, scholars fail far too often to provide real answers because they've never been taught to go beyond the traditional languages of the Hebrew, Aramaic, Greek etc. with which the Bible and other ancient texts have been written. But doing that is actually very important. This is because these texts are not religious in nature, as we've been taught to think of religion, but rather, as I've discovered, are secret repositories of hidden information that contain a treasure trove of unimaginable truth, buried beneath an ancient, verifiable code; and as a promise, you will learn this code and the powerful truth it contains, that has never been revealed to the world, when you read what I've uncovered in this or any of the other books I've written.

If scholars were taught, despite what tradition says, that the aforementioned languages and others stemmed from the Sumerian, it would assist them greatly in their endeavor to learn and teach the truth. The answers to even the deepest questions are all there, they've simply been hidden; and traditional methodology continues to conceal them.

But why do scholars and theologians fail to see the connection?

Linguists say that languages can be classified into groups, such as the Semitic, Indo-European or Afro-Asiatic and others and they will tell you that the languages in these different groups are not related. But that statement, however deeply-engrained into the thinking and curriculum of present-day institutions and those who operate them, as a fact is simply not true. My personal experience from years of research, tells me that there are great similarities between the Afro-Asiatic and Semitic language groups, and even between the Afro-Asiatic and English, as odd as that may sound to scholars.

The Bible tells us to seek the Old Paths (Heb. Owlam meaning ancient) and calls them good (Jeremiah 6:16) and the oldest or most ancient written language path known, is in the Afro-Asiatic group of languages and is known as Sumerian Cuneiform.

When I entertained the idea that there was more to this ancient Biblical mandate than met the eye and began using the logograms of the Sumerian Cuneiform to understand the Biblical and other ancient narratives, the amount of information that I began to uncover about numerous topics provided more than enough confirmation that I was correct in my new approach; and the wealth of information that I've uncovered since then using these same techniques, has been eye-opening to say the least, as you will soon understand.

All-important information regarding the Sumerians, including their secret identity, is just one of many topics you will learn about all throughout my writings and at The Inner Circle.

These Sumerians not only invented a language (code) with which they could communicate secretly, when they arrived here on earth but also take their name, *Sumer*ians because certain ones of them were the creators of…Summer. The season of Summer, as Geologists will confirm, was the result of the Earth, like Mars, being tilted on its axis. The tilting of the earth as well as the actual creation of the earth, as is confirmed in the Biblical narrative as well, was done with technology that was also used in a great war, as spoken of in the Hindu texts.

The intermittent heat that was created as a result of this tilt, especially at the geographic location they refer to as The Edin, (called Eden in the Bible and the location of which I reveal at the Inner Circle), enabled a suitable environment on earth for their enterprise referred to as the ‘Great Work’ which involves every human on the earth, today, but if you think you know what I’m referring to or that you’ve heard this before, think again. The details I reveal at The Inner Circle have never been revealed before and will literally shock you when you learn the truth. Everything in our world, as it says in Isaiah 29:16 has been turned upside down.

The Sumerians were literally terra-forming the earth in order to build a vast temple complex, which secretly exists today and in order to do this, a biological and terrestrial groundwork had to be laid.

One small piece of evidence to point to this fact comes from the book of Genesis in the Bible. When it refers to Hagar being in Petrea it is a hidden reference to a media that biologists call agar that is placed within Petri dishes in which they grow bacteria and other life forms.

Furthermore, the word Edin, describing the place where certain biological life forms were being cultivated by these Sumerians, means a field or plain in the Sumerian language as well as the Hebrew language. This is also why the English word agar, describing the media that biologists use to cultivate life in a laboratory, is also an exact word meaning an irrigated field in the Sumerian language. These Sumerians used water as the agar to irrigate the Petri dish of the field called Edin, where they initially began their 'Great Work', which secretly continues today under the nose of the unwitting masses.

And if you find it hard to believe that a word from the most ancient language like agar has found its way into the global language of English, thousands of years later and even carries a similar meaning, just wait until you get to the Inner Circle. The evidence for this is overwhelming and this piece of information is only the beginning.

By engaging in their 'Great Work' as it is known by Freemasons and the Illuminati, these Sumerians were breaking an ancient, spiritual law to birth into existence a hybridized biological entity into which they had literally inserted a stolen sacred genetic stone, secretly referred to under different names within the ancient texts and they did this through alchemical techniques spoken of in the Bible; all of which I explain and fully support at The Inner Circle. This hybridized creature exists today under an alias and its identity and purpose are some of the many things I also reveal.

The language, religion and social and political ideologies set in motion long ago, for the purposes of deceiving the world at this time in history, are currently enveloping the earth, as they did in ancient Babylon, which is why our culture is called Mystery Babylon in the book of Revelation and why we are told to come out of her in chapter 18 of that same book.

Many of today's cultures are actual schisms of the same Sumer-ians of long ago, and their identities have also been covered by different names or aliases to make them appear distinct. They are indeed, however, factions of the same ancient group which is why these similarities in language occur.

This theory flies in the face of currently-held conventional thought, but there is much to back it up.

When you join The Inner Circle, you will come to learn why understanding the secret meanings hidden within the logograms of the Sumerian language is crucial to knowing not only the true meaning behind the stories within the Bible and other ancient texts, but also to understanding the reason for your very existence and who you truly are. These are things that I teach my Apprentices one-on-one at The Inner Circle; and they are easier to comprehend than you might think, once you know the ancient secrets.

It states in Isaiah 29:15 & 16 that everything, including the earth itself, has been turned upside down or twisted to appear as the work of the Creator. This is due to the authors of the newer ancient texts (code), known as the Scribes and Pharisees, who have left us with our current context, which, as we are told in Jeremiah 8:8, is fraudulent. These names are simply Aliases covering the true identity of the ones who have unlawfully manipulated everything we have come to believe is normal, not the least of which are the pillars, spoken of throughout the ancient texts*, with which humanity has been built.*

Knowing the truth, however, as the great teachers stated, will indeed make you free.

We live in very unstable times in a world that is rapidly deteriorating in many ways. I only touch on a very small piece of the puzzle in this book. There is much more for you to learn at The Inner Circle and throughout my other works which can be found at www.PaxeonPublishing.com.

I hope you choose to join, ponder what you learn there and apply it to your own life to draw closer to the true Creator. The truth is the only thing that will allow you to be free from the lies that have held you captive and there are so many questions answered from my research at the Inner Circle, that I couldn't even begin to list them all in one book. I look forward to seeing you there!

CHAPTER ONE

Technology and the Mind

There are few mysteries that enamor the masses and appeal to the imagination like that of the Great Pyramid at Giza in the land of Egypt. The world holds many enigmas, but it is safe to say that this wondrous mass of stones, is of greater interest than any other.

One of the reasons that it draws so much attention, is because it continues to exude so much mystery, even after thousands of years; and therefore, the questions surrounding it are many. Who built this great monument? Why was it built? What is its purpose? How was it constructed? What does it symbolize? For whom was it built? These and many more questions continue to be asked by millions of people around the world, but with no viable answers in sight.

The purpose of this book is to change that by providing elucidating research that finally offers answers to the mysteries surrounding this all-important monument. It is my firm belief, after more than a decade and with tens of thousands of hours of exegesis under my belt using specialized methods I've developed, that most, if not all of the answers to the all-important questions in life, especially the deepest ones unanswered by theologians, scholars and scientists alike, are available within the pages of ancient texts when we know how and where to look for them. This is something I've proven over and over again throughout my writings.

That being the case, one of the questions that must be asked is 'why do the history hounds and scientific sleuths coming out of the educational systems around the world, continue to miss the writing on the wall? This is a piece of the thread of irony, in a world ruled by a rod of iron (See Revelation 12), that runs consistently throughout the scientific and theological communities today; and this same rod of iron, as you'll see, is the very thing that has prevented them from seeing the answers that are right in front of their eyes. Or to borrow a saying from more ancient texts that explains this wide-spread epidemic, 'having eyes, they see not…'

One reason that those with the most access to data in our current society, who are often seen as the experts in any given field, do not have the real answers, even after thousands of hours of research, is because their research is done with the use of computers while using their mental energies for other things at the same time. Whatever a person's field of study may be, our world demands that these professionals acquire their data through a computer screen. And with this newfound ease of access, the need to use one's energies for more mundane activities like flipping pages, manually documenting data etc., is eliminated. With the swift and easy influx of so much data, the natural instinct is to use the energy of the brain for other activities. This is known as multi-tasking.

The unspoken sentiment is that if we have the ability to multi-task, why shouldn't we? It would seem more efficient and in the end, more productive. Right? Well, not according to research. With computer use at an all-time high and more data available than ever before in history, it would seem logical to think that we would be wiser and smarter as individuals and as a society in general, having filled our brains with that data through multi-tasking and accessing the copious amounts of data we have at our disposal. The facts, however, say otherwise.

At the University of California, San Francisco, researchers have found that when rats are learning something new, they only produce a lasting memory of that new knowledge when they take a break. This break allows the brain to review the experience or knowledge, solidify it and only then turn it into a long-term memory. Furthermore, the research has found that simply relaxing does not work. The reason is that we've been conditioned to multi-task even while we relax, which taxes our brains and prevents the memory of what we just learned, from forming. Moreover, Scientists now know that juggling phone calls, emails and other information changes how people think and behave. They now know that our ability to focus is being undermined by these quick influxes of information because the stimulation provokes excitement by producing the neurotransmitter called dopamine in the brain and this intermittent production of dopamine can cause addiction to these devices.

To add to this epidemic, multi-tasking can be deadly, as when truck drivers and train engineers cause wrecks because they are using cell phones. And for millions of people multi-tasking with these devices can inflict synaptic nicks and mental cuts into creativity and deep thought, interrupting work and family life. While many people say multitasking helps them be more productive, research shows otherwise. Heavy multi-taskers actually have more trouble focusing and shutting out irrelevant information, scientists say, and they experience more stress. And scientists are discovering that even after the multitasking ends, fractured thinking and lack of focus persist. In other words, this is also your brain off computers. In essence, technology is rewiring our brains;[1] and the negative results are becoming quite obvious, everywhere you look.

To overcome the effects of these devices, one needs to divest themselves of the technology and truly rest and relax the mind and body. Examples would be taking a walk on a quiet path in the woods where there is little stimuli instead of in a frenetic urban area, eating lunch in a quiet environment without checking the cell phone, sitting in a peaceful environment in solitude and resisting the urge to text a friend.[2]

Practicing not to over-tax our brains simply because we can, will help us create the lasting memories of the truly meaningful information that has the power to transform our lives and will bring us back in touch with the genuine peace of the Creator.

One of the mysteries of this learning dynamic is found in the method by which all of the data is conveyed to us. This is something that is never spoken about, but whether we are looking at a computer, laptop, tablet, cell phone, television or other device, they all have one thing in common; before it reaches our eyes, the data they bring to us is first passed through a phosphorous-impregnated membrane. But why is this significant?

Phosphorus, although present in the human body in areas such as bones and nerves, is defined as a poisonous non-metal. This means that the data we receive from these devices is quite literally passed through a poison-filled membrane, before it enters our eyes. This being the case and with all of the advanced methods of data delivery currently available to us, we have to ask why Phosphorous, specifically has been the substance of choice with which the screens on all cell phones and computer devices are filled? In other words, why is it necessary for Phosphorous-filled light to bring the data to our eyes? Hopefully, as you continue to read through this book, the secret, ancient answer to that question will become evident to you, as it has to me and many others who have read this research.

We live in a technologically-advanced society, but I don't believe we've ever been dumber as humans and more ignorant of the truth. We have cell phones to communicate with each other on a whim, computers to do the heavy mental lifting, software to do our bidding with the click of a button and all of these technologies are meant, so we are told, to make our lives easier and to make us better and more highly-developed as people. But one must question if that is really the case. It seems the more technology we have access to, the less we use our minds; and I think many would agree.

As I pointed out previously, by relying too heavily on cell phones that we are told are meant to enhance our communication, our verbal communication skills have diminished. By depending on computers to process information, our ability to think logically, which goes hand-in-hand with common sense, has been greatly corrupted. And the list goes on. The result of the introduction of these technologies into our society, has been the loss of some key aspects of our existence and our experience, as humans.

This heavy dependence on technology without understanding its far-reaching implications, bleeds over into all areas of life, but some very good examples are found in the scientific and religious arenas.

For instance, rather than sweat over hours of Biblical research to deliver a profound message that evokes change in himself or the members of his church, a Pastor can now download a canned three-point sermon from any number of websites and read it to his congregation. And for the scientist who wants to keep his hands clean and his mind from being cluttered by the meaningful issues of life, accessing computer-generated molecular models or online simulations from the comfort of his office, sure beats grinding away in a lab or gathering empirical data out in the field.

We have embraced technology wholesale before we are mentally and spiritually mature enough to understand the ramifications. All things considered, we must ask, what is the cost of utilizing these technologies? As we ponder this issue, we must question whether we have actually progressed or if the evidence points to the more likely scenario of regression on a wide scale.

As I've said many times, because we can create technology, does not mean we should, nor does it mean that it is truly advantageous for us to use it. Whether it's the use of mechanical robots to scrape dust from mars to bring back to earth, the attachment of electronic tracking devices to monitor the migratory patterns of animals, the recombination of genetic material to manufacture a different type of fruit or vegetable, the formulation of a new pharmaceutical and the testing of its effects on the public or any number of other so-called advanced technologies, they tend to diminish a key human element, necessary for finding the truth. Whether you refer to this element as human intuition, the nous, which in the Greek language means the seat of reflective consciousness, the spirit or just common sense, put simply, we've damaged our ability to use a key component of our minds to acquire and then effectively connect with the truth; and greater insight than we realize is lost when we sacrifice the ability not simply to think, but to reason properly based on that truth.

The mind is an incredible resource because of its ability to be mined, quite literally, and provide answers. I want to be clear here that I am referring to the mind, rather than the brain.

The mind is a spiritual aspect of man, which, if trained, enables us to operate, even if briefly, outside of the trappings of space and time and glean insight to which we might not otherwise avail ourselves by using only the brain. The brain, like the body, is one of the physical constructs of man, which, like the pyramid, has been built, and one of the pathways of man through which the mind, like the spirit can flow. The two however are not the same.

This distinction is something that those within the scientific community do not fully understand and often ignore as a result, as indicated by their constant attempts to harness the power of the brain, rather than to understand the source from which the mind has come. As a result, the attempts by scientists today to eagerly probe the brain, rather than respectfully understand or mine the mind, have created obstacles that clutter the road to truth, rather than clear a way to it.

To sift through the clutter of answers that have been given over the centuries to explain the mysteries surrounding the Great Pyramid and to find truthful answers to these mysteries, first requires that one's mind be open. Not a mind that is open like a dangerous pit waiting to swallow up any explanation that comes along, but a mind rather, that is open like a parachute, enabling one to see the available landscape of information more clearly, from a broader and higher point of view. When we are willing to take this approach, we are finally able to acquire some viable answers not only about the Great Pyramid at Giza, but other extremely important and related topics, that have otherwise gone unnoticed for millennia.

When studying the Great Pyramid it is important to be mindful of the fact that it is a powerful representation of longevity and durability. It has withstood every manner of assault for thousands of years, and still stands. Whether it was war, weather, pillaging or any other obtrusive event, the pyramid, although not entirely unscathed, is still with us today and for the most part, intact. Very few constructs, if any at all, built in our era or any other era in human history, can boast such stability; which brings up the second point.

No architectural firm or team of firms in our highly-advanced society today could accomplish such a feat. Not only the durability but the precision with which the Pyramid was built is outside of the realm of possibility for our technology today. If we took the brightest minds from the fields of mathematics, computer science, astronomy, architecture, geology or any other field, and equipped them with unlimited financial and material resources, they would be unable to create the Great Pyramid as it stands today, much less how it stood in all its glory before its casing stones were removed. Simply put, we have never built, nor could we build, a structure for which that same claim could be made, thousands of years after the fact; and that is a humbling thought.

We've all heard the story of the blocks of the Great Pyramid being so tightly fitted, that a piece of paper cannot be slid between them, and how it is perfectly (or nearly perfectly) aligned to the cardinal points of the compass, and how it, along with the other two smaller pyramids, is in perfect alignment with the stars in the belt of the constellation of Orion and more. All these things are true, but what do they all mean?

As with all mysteries, there are answers. But we must know where and how to look for them. Most look to books, digital or otherwise or to videos or web pages but with so many available, and with so many varying opinions and hypotheses found throughout, which ones can you trust? One author states that the Pyramid was built over a period of 20 years by thousands of Egyptian workers and yet another states that it was built by Israelite slaves. One author states that the great limestone blocks, many weighing up to 50 tons, were smoothed by hand with soft copper tools. Others say these stones were sanded by a make-shift, wheel-driven sanding apparatus. Which view can you believe? Can you believe any of them?

If we, with all of our technology, machinery and know-how, are unable to build such a monument today, then does it really make any sense to believe that humans of any culture were involved in the building of the Great Pyramid at Giza, to any significant degree, thousands of years ago?

I find it very difficult to accept the idea that thousands of years ago, a group of several thousand workers, skilled or otherwise, over a period of 20 or more years, mined, cut and smoothed large slabs of limestone and granite with makeshift stone or soft copper tools which would have been unsuitable for such work. I find it even more difficult to believe that they took these slabs from that distant location, roughly ten miles away, rolled them back to the building site at Giza on timbers, or somehow slid them onto barges docked on the Nile for the same purpose, then meticulously and seamlessly fit them together to construct the most amazing architectural structure ever known to man.

As much as Egyptologists would like to claim that their ancient ancestors were responsible for this monument, one of the Seven Wonders of the World, and to have the picture they've painted of these events accepted by the mainstream, their version just doesn't merge with reason. If we use our common sense, it is obvious that these events and methods do not fit into a logical paradigm, no matter how many television documentaries try to twist that paradigm to fit the alleged events. We must, therefore, continue looking for answers.

CHAPTER TWO

Ancient Answers

For various reasons, the best answers are usually found in the oldest texts. And one of the best compilations of old texts that I know of, to look to for answers, is the Bible. The Bible, however, is a highly-misunderstood book. It is a great collection of secret knowledge for anyone seeking the truth properly, but it has unfortunately been linked with Christianity, specifically; and when many in today's world discard Christianity, they mistakenly discard the Bible, as well.

Theologians will tell you that we do not have any of the original words of the Bible, because we do not have any of the original books of the Bible. But that is simply not true. Those words and their messages are available to us, even within the Bible, itself. The fact is, they've simply been covered by the surface text of the Bible and concealed beneath the overt message found in the current books.

The books within the Bible, however, in their unadulterated form, were never intended to be used for any one religion but were written rather, to be a repository of truth. Similarly, most of the stories within the Bible, although Christianized, were not originally written by or for Christians; and as a fact, they are not unique to Christianity.

Whether we are talking about the stories of Adam in the Garden in Eden, Noah's Ark, Esther and Mordecai, Abraham and his wife Sara, The sons of God marrying daughters, the Immaculate conception of Mary, Jesus on the Cross or any number of other stories, they have all come from more ancient cultures than that of the Jews.

The Jews manufactured Ju-deo Christianity as it is known today, when they stole these stories from more ancient cultures for that purpose. They have falsely stated for thousands of years that these stories were originally written by their own scribes, that they were given to them directly by God and as such, have proceeded to use them for their own purposes, having infused these lies into Christianity, to this very day.

The origins of these hijacked stories that have been twisted into what Titus 1:14 refers to as Jewish fables, however, are altogether different that those given by the Jews and the Pastors, Theologians and Biblical scholars within Judeo-Christianity, itself. This is simply a fact.

The story of a man by the name of Utnapishtim in the Epic of Gilgamesh, who built a boat according to the instructions of god in order to save his family and the animals from a great flood, was told long before the Jewish story of Noah, by the Sumerians and Babylonians. The same applies to the story of Esther and Mordecai, who they referred to as Ishtar and Marduk. The Hindu's told the story of a woman named Sarasvati and her husband Brahma prior to the re-telling of that same story in the Bible with characters known as Sara and Abraham. With very little effort, it's quite easy to see that the name Sara is a take on the name Sarasvati, and the name Abraham is simply an anagram of the name Brahma.

Moreover, the story of the Immaculate Conception of Mary, came from the Egyptian story of Iset who was impregnated by the seed (that she stole, incidentally), of the Creator, Asar. This story is also much like that of the daughters of Lot who also stole their Father's seed in Genesis chapter 19.

The story of the Sons of God marrying the daughters of Adam was told in the hieroglyphs on the walls of the temple of Seti in Egypt and on and on it goes.

And the story of the Son of God (Jesus, King of the Jews) being killed on the cross at which time he was pierced so his blood could mysteriously be used for humanity, when he became 'sin' according to II Corinthians 5:21, shares the same characteristics as those mentioned above; having come from a culture long predating that of the Jews, it is not unique to Judeo-Christianity, either.

In the Babylonian creation epic, called the Enuma Elish, the name of the Son of God was Kingu, which is the source of the phrase King of the Jews, the title nailed above Jesus' head on the cross in the later, twisted Biblical version of that same story.

In the original version of the Sumerians, Kingu, the Son of God, was killed not on a literal cross in order to save humanity from 'sin' but rather at the crossing of the planet called Nibiru, during which time he was pierced so his blood could be used to create humanity. This was done through the literal creation of 'sin', the true, hidden meaning of which you will learn later on in the book. (This is the real meaning behind Isaiah 53:5 and I Peter 2:24 which both state, by his stripes we are healed. This is also the true meaning of John 1:3 which, in reference to Jesus states*, All things were made by Him and without Him was not anything made, that was made*.

This is also why man is said to have been made rather than created, as the other things were in Genesis chapter 1. I also explain this in detail in my paper entitled Cinderella and other Tales of the Pharies at The Inner Circle. (This story will have even deeper significance for you later on in the book, as it is directly related to the mystery of the Great Pyramid.)

The story of the creation of Adam in Eden, in similar fashion, was also told long before the Biblical rendition of that story. Its origins also go back to those known as the Sumerians. The Bible uses not only the name of the location which the Sumerians also called Eden, but the same name of the one who was created as well, who they too called Adam.

The Bible even uses the same name of the entity who the Sumerians say created Adam and placed him into Eden. The scribes who wrote much of the Bible, however, who are described as liars in Jeremiah 8:8, in order to deceive Biblical readers today, as I will later show, simply used a different spelling of that character's name and, with a Hermetic twist, used it in their Biblical version of that same story in an attempt to make it their own.

It is no surprise that we find such similarities between the Biblical stories and those of cultures that preceded the Jews by hundreds, if not thousands of years. As a fact, the source of most of the stories in the Bible is one very specific culture; that of the Sumerians.

The Sumerians are said to have come 'out of nowhere' and were so much more advanced than any preceding culture that it defies the natural anthropological explanation as to how societies develop, incrementally. They had no fewer than 39 'firsts', of which no known culture preceding them has any record. The Sumerians were the first to develop wheeled vehicles, the first to use bronze, the first to use a potter's wheel, the drawn plow, a working sewer system and a farmer's almanac among many other advanced practices for their time. They also were the first do develop a written form of language called Cuneiform.

Most of the stories in the Bible come from cultures predating the Jews, as we've seen. Taking these stories at face value, therefore, and viewing them through a manufactured doctrinal lens, as is done within Christianity, leads to tremendous confusion and schisms. This is because the Scribes and their cohorts who wrote the Bible in its current form, have gone to great lengths to cover the truth of these stories over thousands of years and the result is a multitude of varying and false interpretations.

Understanding the far-reaching and divisive effects of what can literally be called a lingual, literary or doctrinal conspiracy, we must therefore, apply a more viable method of exegesis in order to sift out the underlying, all-important truth hidden within these stories. But how is this possible?

Prior to my research, such a method did not exist. Over many years, however, I've developed a very effective and specialized method of gleaning the truth buried beneath the current versions, that the writers of the original stories tried to give us, by stripping away the extraneous layers they've laid, dismantling their doctrines in the process and rebuilding the stories properly by using the oldest written language of the Sumerian Cuneiform.

As I've proven throughout my many works found at www.PaxeonPublishing.com the result has been the reconstruction of an extraordinarily elucidating context that unravels once-enigmatic stories and exposes many mysteries of life, intentionally hidden within the Bible. Is it possible, therefore, that this practice can also provide clues to help us unravel the ancient mystery of the Great Pyramid as well?

The answer is yes, but there are a few things we must establish about the Great Pyramid, the first of which is location.

We know that the Great Pyramid is in Giza, an area of Egypt, which is a country in Africa. Egypt is the Northeastern-most country of Africa and Giza is located close to the Northeastern tip of Egypt. From the picture below, using Google Earth, we can see the exact location of the Great Pyramid of Giza on the west bank of the Nile river.

One thing that is important to note, is that Egypt actually borders the country of Israel. One might not readily think of the continent of Africa sharing its border with the country of Israel, but that is indeed the case. Also, from the pictures on the following pages, we can see that the Great Pyramid is not even that far from either the border of Israel or that of Jerusalem, itself. It sits only 270 miles from the city of Jerusalem and only 200 miles from the closest point of Israel's border.

In the Bible, there is an interesting statement made in the book of Isaiah in verses 19 and 20 of chapter 19. It says: In that day shall there be an altar to the LORD in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the LORD And it shall be for a sign and for a witness unto the LORD of hosts in the land of Egypt…

The object mentioned in these verses that is of most interest, when gathering information about the Great Pyramid, is the pillar that was said to be at the border of Egypt. Is it possible that this pillar was actually a reference to the Great Pyramid, itself? If the pillar said to be at the border of Egypt truly was a reference to the great Pyramid, one would firstly expect it to not only be sitting on the border of Egypt, as described in that verse, but to also be substantially closer than 200 miles from the border of Israel, the country for whose 'God' the pillar was to be a witness.

To solve this riddle, we must realize that, just as the borders of countries have shifted throughout our time, due to war, political upheaval, treaties, etc., so too have they expanded and contracted throughout ancient history; and as my research shows, this is indeed the unwritten, long-hidden historical truth concerning the borders of Israel.

On May 25th, 1990, at a press conference in Geneva, Yasser Arafat stated that an Israeli coin called the Agora-10 depicted a map of Israel with enlarged borders. These borders included all of Jordan and Lebanon, as well as large portions of Syria, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and…Egypt. The area depicted on this coin, has been said by some to be a testimony to Israel's future goals of expansion, in fact, however, it is actually patterned after an ancient Jewish coin issued at the time of King Mattathias of the Hasmonean dynasty and the modern Israeli version depicts the shape of the original coin, which had eroded during the ensuing 2,000 years.[3]

Syrian Defense Minister Mustafa Tlas has also said that an inscription, 'The Land of Israel, from the Euphrates to the Nile,' is chiseled over the entrance to the Knesset. (Israel's Legislature.) Others have also claimed a map inside the Knesset shows these borders, as well.[4]

Could it be true, therefore that the border of Israel, as stated above, at one time actually stretched Southward and Westward, all the way to the Nile River? If so, this would mean that the border of Egypt would have stopped on the west bank of the Nile River. It also means that the location of the Great Pyramid, would have been sitting exactly on the Eastern border of Egypt at one time, precisely where the pillar was said to have been placed in Isaiah chapter 19.

More evidence that Israel's borders at one time covered a much broader area comes from the book of Joshua in chapter 15 which describes in detail the area of the parcel of land that was given to the tribe of Judah. Verse 1 begins the description: This then was the parcel of land given by inheritance to the children of Judah by their families. Verse 4 of the same chapter goes on to tell us that the south border went out unto the river of Egypt and continues on with the description by the clarifying statement*…this shall be your south coast*. Verse 20 of that same chapter tells us once again, this is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah according to their families. Verse 47 makes it clear, one more time where the southerly border of Judah's land went when it states: …unto the river of Egypt.

Another description, which comes from an older book of the Bible, that of Numbers, also tells us about this ancient border. In chapter 34 verses 1 and 2 we read, And the Lord spoke unto Moses saying; Command the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land of Canaan, this is the land that shall fall unto you for an inheritance. Verse 5 goes on to describe the southern limit of that area once again as …unto the river of Egypt. An even older reference defining the border of Israel can be found in the Bible in the book of Genesis chapter 15, verse 18 where we read, In the same day the LORD made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land …from the river of Egypt.

One last reference from the book of Ezekiel sheds still more light on the location of the southern border of Israel when in chapter 47, verses 13 and 19 we read, Thus saith the Lord GOD; This shall be the border, whereby ye shall inherit the land according to the twelve tribes of Israel… from the south side southward, the river to the great sea. The Great Sea being a reference to the Mediterranean Sea and the river, being a reference once again, to the river which leads directly into that Great Sea.

Interestingly, when searching for an actual map that showed this ancient border of Israel, I continued to run into one dead end after another. The oldest maps I could find always showed the Southern border of Israel stopping at the river known as simply The River of Egypt known in present-day terms as the Wadi El-Arish. There is a problem with this, however.

The phrase The River of Egypt comes from the Hebrew name Nachal Mitzrayim, which simply refers to the Western border of Israel, but is a mistranslation, as older Aramaic translations identify Nachal Mitzrayim with an arm of a very specific river lying on the border of Egypt.[5] II Chronicles 9:26 confirms the identity of this river with a related term Nahar Mitzrayim.[6] There has always been only one river in the country of Egypt, so it should come as no surprise that the older Aramaic and Biblical reference in Chronicles are specific references to that same river on the ancient border of Egypt, known as The Nile.

Equipped with the new knowledge that a very different southern border of Israel existed than what is commonly taught, we now have a new context within which we can work as well as one that will prove to be more accurate. We now know that not only was the Nile river the line of demarcation for the southernmost border of Israel, but that the Nile river was, indeed, the northeastern border of Egypt as well. We've already seen that this is the spot where the Pillar was said to have been placed in Isaiah chapter 19, and in the next chapter we'll take an in-depth look at this fascinating Pillar.

CHAPTER THREE

The Mystery of the Pillar

The Hebrew word for pillar in Isaiah chapter 19 is Matstseva and means just that, a pillar. In the common sense, a pillar is a type of support or something that sustains, differing in shape from the traditional cylindrical column.[7] It is known as a piler in French and was called a pilare in Middle Latin and meant a pillar or stone barrier. In the figurative sense it was anything used as a prop or support of an institution or community.[8] This meaning, however, was derived from an even older Latin term that meant a wall of stones or something heaped up. It is also related to the Old English word beam meaning living tree, which takes its meaning from the yet more ancient Latin phrase Columna Lucis, denoting once again, a pillar but not just any pillar, but rather a pillar of fire.[9]

Another word that shares the same etymology is the word obelisk meaning a stone column tapering at the top. The word comes from the Latin word obeliscus meaning a small spit, and it is derived from the older Greek word Obeliskos meaning a spit, needle or pointed pillar.

These pointed pillars can be seen in thousands of places around America and even the world, and are often the monument of choice set in thousands of town squares. They are a Freemasonic symbol and are known in those same circles as Pylars. You'll notice that the spelling of Pillar and Pylar are very similar and this is because they mean essentially the same thing; but within the circles of secret societies, the meaning goes, as they say…much deeper.

In Freemasonic tradition, there is a legend that there were two stones crafted by the sons of Lamech in the Bible. The names of those sons were Jubal and Jabal and the stones that they were said to have fashioned from materials known as Marbyll and Laturus were called by the names Boaz and Jachin. The stones were said to contain all of the knowledge that man had ever known and all he would ever know. Furthermore, tradition holds that one of these stones was impervious to fire and the other was impervious to water. These stones were also known as Pilars or Pylars.

Why, however were these stones fashioned to withstand fire and water? The first answer to this question is found in the Biblical story of the flood. But how could a simple stone provide protection from a flood? We've already seen that one of the definitions of a Pillar means a pile of stones or something heaped up and when we realize that this description fits that of the Great Pyramid at Giza, things begin to come into focus.

The root of the words Pilar or Pylar is from the Greek word Pyl and means a gate or portal. This is because the Great Pyramid, just as the Egyptians tell us in their writings, was built as a kind of sanctuary leading underground. The word Pyle also means vein which is another name for a cave or cavernous area and which would support this definition even further. This would also explain why there still existed giants after the great flood of the Bible, when the purpose of that deluge was to destroy them. It seems entirely plausible that they went underground, through the portal of the Great Pyramid and found a safe haven in the veins or caverns underneath.

The idea of a hidden underground sanctuary of sorts may be difficult to believe at first, but there have even been entire books written in modern times about the hollow earth often referred to as Agartha and those same books even mention giants living there. These books have been written by upstanding and respectable individuals such as Alexandre Saint-Yves d'Alveydre who published the first reliable account of Agartha in Europe,[10] Raymond Bernard who wrote The Hollow Earth and Admiral Byrd who wrote a short journal about his experience with these beings when his plane was drawn into their domain when he was flying over the North Pole. The Hollow Earth, also known as Shambalah, figures prominently into the teachings of Buddhism, The Tibetans as well as Theosophists who also consider it a vast array of underground caverns,[11] supporting the idea of the word Pyle, as seen above.

These underground caverns, according to these traditions and others, are said to be inhabited by Demons or what are known in the Arabic tradition as Djinn. The word Djinn comes from the root J-N-N and means to hide or to be hidden which would certainly fit with the idea of a cavernous underground world. The Arabic tradition also holds that these were the ones called by the name Shaytan or Satan, which further puts one in the mind of what the Bible calls hell. The Bible includes a similar teaching in II Peter 2:4, where we read …God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment. The book of Jude also tells us in verse 6, …the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

This tradition of Hell being inside the earth and filled with evil beings, however, is another example of how things have been turned upside down by those who govern the religious systems and how they intentionally teach a literal interpretation of the stories within their texts, for purposes of control. When we continue to uncover what's been hidden by the language, however, we learn just why and how they've done this.

CHAPTER FOUR

Hidden Hell

There are four different words in the Bible specifically used for hell. There is one word used in the Old Testament but three different words used in the New Testament. The word used in the Old Testament is Sheol and means a subterranean place of thick darkness where the dead are gathered. Sheol is also said to have gates.[12] Sheol is the only word in the Old Testament translated as hell and is from the Hebrew root Sha'al which means to borrow or ask for a loan, the great importance of which you will see shortly.

The New Testament carries this idea forward, but uses 3 three different words to do so, one of which is Hades. Hades is described as the realm of the dead, the netherworld or the infernal (fiery) region in the depths of the earth. It is considered a dark and dismal place and a receptacle of disembodied spirits and was called the grave.[13]

A second word translated as hell in the New Testament is Tartaroo from the Greek word Tartarus. It, like Hades, is considered to be in the depths of the earth, but is also described as the deepest abyss of hell.[14]

A third word used in the New Testament for hell is Geenna and is Hebrew in origin from Ge Hinnom, meaning the Valley of the sons of Hinnom, a valley Southeast of Jerusalem in which the children were thrown into the fire of Molech. It is used to describe the place in Hades where the wicked suffer punishment after death.[15]

When we combine the essence of these four definitions of hell, we find that they carry with them the idea that hell is a place that is low, beneath a terrestrial surface, where inhabitants are subjected to darkness and the fire of Molech. This was also the essence of the older definition as given from the Hebrew word Ge Hinnom.

Before going further, it is crucial to understand that there are many metaphors, allegories and plays on words within the pages of the Bible and other ancient texts and it is very important that we realize that these things should rarely be taken literally, just as they are written. As I've proven many times, if we want to get to the truth of any Biblical story, we need to look below the surface text; and the truth about a subterranean hell and how it relates to the Pyramid is no different.

Over many centuries, Theologians have assumed that the terms from the Bible, chains under darkness or chains of darkness as mentioned above, refer to a location beneath the surface of the earth, because of the tradition that hell is a subterranean location; and they have taught the doctrine of hell accordingly. The word subterranean, however, does not necessarily refer to the terrain of the earth, as the earth is only one of many terrestrial places when we look at things from a universal perspective.

The word earth in the Hebrew is erets and can refer to the world on which we live, but also simply means territory, region or soil. There are planets other than the earth, and the word subterranean can easily refer to an area inside or below any of these other planets; and as difficult as it may be for some to understand, this is actually the case when it comes to understanding the location of hell.

Whether we are talking about the place called Gehenna in the English, Ge Hinnom in the Hebrew, Gehanna in the Aramaic, Geenna from the Greek or Jahannam in the Arabic, the word for hell in any of these and other languages, literally refers to a place entirely separate from the earth.

To find a clue as to the location of Gehenna, we need to first understand that the name Gehenna is simply another name for Molech, which was worshipped by the Ammonites, Phonecians and Israelites in the desert and to whom they offered their children up for a fiery sacrifice. Molech also equates to a statue of the bull of the Carthaginians.[16] Molech has another name, however, which is Remphan in the Greek (Acts 7:43) or Rompha in the Coptic (Egyptian) language.[17]

When we look to the book of Amos we see yet another correlation between not only Remphan and Molech, but an entirely different word in verse 26 of chapter 5. Here we read: But ye have borne the tabernacle of your Moloch and Keyun your images, the star of your god, which ye made to yourselves. The word Keyun here is a reference to Remphan as well as Moloch and is from an Arabic as well as Syriac word which, once again both refer to the same thing.[18] Interestingly, however, Keyun also not only means, Pillar, but also refers to the exact same location, outside of the earth, that Gehenna refers to.[19]

When we begin putting all of these scattered pieces of evidence together, we start to see a rather clear picture of the object that the ancient scribes have tried to hide beneath the language, just as we are told they will in Jeremiah chapter 8 verse 8 where we are told the writing of the scribes is fraudulent.

We've seen that the English word Gehenna, a word used for hell in the Bible, is the same word, spelled only slightly differently, used for hell in the Hebrew, Greek, Aramaic and Arabic languages. The meaning of Gehenna, however, despite the colorful language surrounding it describing a fiery sub-surface location, really defines only one thing. The words Gehenna, Molech, Remphan and Keyun, when taken back to the Hebrew, Greek, Arabic, Aramaic, Phoenician, Egyptian, Syriac or Chaldean languages, all refer to the same thing that the above-mentioned Carthaginian bull statue also was a symbol of, and that is the planet Saturn.

There are two key questions that must be asked at this point. Firstly, why have the Jewish Scribes, the writers of much of the Bible, replaced the more ancient version of Hell, which denotes the planet Saturn, with words describing a more localized, earthly place? Secondly, is there a connection between Saturn and the Gin or Fallen Angels said to be placed under the earth? To answer both of those important questions, we need to return to the subject of the fire that this pillar was said to withstand.

CHAPTER FIVE

Foundational Fraud

We've seen that the Biblical flood was the reason that a pillar, impervious to water would have been created, but what would be the reason for the creation of a pillar impervious to fire? One thing that I've learned from researching this and many other subjects of like nature, is this; what is not said on the surface translation (or even underlying languages) of the Bible and other ancient writings, is just as important, if not more important, as what is being said. This is why we must not only have a proper context for a starting point, so we have a firm foundation on which to build our findings, but to also feel free when doing research to read between the lines and look for corroborating evidence and recurring themes to support any hypotheses.

There are always overt as well as covert messages in these texts that hold the keys to many unanswered questions. This is one reason why theologians and scholars miss many otherwise elucidating facts, including what I am about to share with you.

Chapter one in the book of Genesis tells us that things were created by God, a name which in the Hebrew translates as Elohiym, meaning gods (with a lowercase 'g'), rulers, divine ones, angels or judges. A crucial piece of this story missed by Theologians, however, is the fact that these Elohiym were bringing about the world and manufacturing what it contains through two different processes. They were making and they were creating which are translated as asah and bara in the Hebrew, respectively.

The word Asah (to make), means to fashion or make something through labor and carries with it the idea of pressing or squeezing. The word Bara (to create) means to make something new, by forming or shaping it and by cutting it down or cutting it out.

At the end of chapter one, in verse 31 we read, And Elohiym saw everything they had made and behold, it was very good. Most would take this to mean, simply, that everything that had been manufactured by Elohiym was good, and this is precisely what is taught in all churches today. But this is not what the verse says and therefore, not what it means.

Elohiym saw that the things that they had made were good. This includes the firmament, the sun, moon, beasts of the earth, creeping things etc. Man, however, was not on the list of things that were made.

We are told in verse 27, So God created man in their own image, in the image of God created they him; male and female created they them. Man, therefore, was created, rather than made.

Due to the false Christian belief that the Bible, as it is written, is inerrant and inspired by 'God', most do not question the difference in these two terms make and create; but this is a mistake with dire consequences. The tendency to gloss over relevant words when studying the Bible is also due to the fact that we are not taught that such nuances in the language are important. This is simply not true, but quite the opposite. In this particular story, as with many others in the Bible, the fact that we miss important information is also due to the false context created by an improper translation; and in the case of the Biblical story of Creation, that improper translation can be found in the verses following the end of chapter one in Genesis.

In Genesis chapter two verses 1 through 3 we read these words in relation to the manufacturing that just took place: Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them. And on the seventh day Elohiym ended their work which they had made; and they rested on the seventh day from all their work which they had made. And Elohiym blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because that in it they had rested from all their work which Elohiym created and made. These verses intentionally make it sound as if everything Elohiym had brought about was satisfactory and that they were quite pleased with their work, even to the point of giving it their blessing, but this is not the case.

Each one of the bolded words in the previous paragraph do mean what they say, that is, if they were in the proper context. Finished would mean finished, ended would mean to end, rested would mean to rest and so on, but this story did not happen as these verses tell us or more accurately stated, these words have been twisted in order to manufacture a false and deceiving context; and that last sentence is a statement you will want to keep in mind as you move through the book.

To understand what the proper context is that should be applied, we need to go back to the first chapter of Genesis and look closer to see if there are any word clues that we may not have caught the first time around, that would shed light on the fact that the context we've been given is false.

Throughout the first chapter, there is a pattern that appears during the creation process. Elohiym make something, after which we see the phrase, and God (Elohiym) saw that it was good. We see this repeated several times in verses 10, 12, 18, 21 and 25 after the various things that Elohiym brought about. When we move down to verse 27, however, where man was made, we do not see this same sentiment expressed, nor do we find it expressed anywhere after that point in the rest of the chapter. This is the first red flag that causes the context to be questioned and prompts us to ask, was man not good? And if not, what happens to something that is not deemed good by 'God', especially when placed amidst an entire creation that was considered good, as we've seen all throughout Genesis chapter one?

We can pick up a few more clues as well as an answer to that question when we move on to the first few verses of chapter 2. We've already seen that the words finished, ended, rested, blessed and sanctified in verses 1 through 3 of chapter 2 can be used just as they are, when placed in a proper context, however, we've also just gotten evidence to support our hypothesis that the context that has been provided for us is likely not an accurate one. The definitions of the words used in these verses, therefore, may not be appropriate either.

The word finished in the Hebrew is kalah and also means to exterminate or destroy.

The word ended in the Hebrew is also kalah and also means to exterminate or destroy. The word rested is the Hebrew word shabath and is the word used for the Sabbath day celebrated by Christians and Jews all around the world, but it also means to exterminate or destroy or to cause something to fail. The word blessed is barak in the Hebrew and also means to curse. And the word sanctified is qadash in Hebrew and also means to make something taboo.

When we use the other definitions of these words and place them into those three verses, we have an entirely new story that begins to unfold. It reads like this: Immediately, therefore (the meaning of the word thus, per Strong's Concordance #3651) the heavens and the earth were destroyed*, and all the host of them on the seventh day. Elohiym* exterminated their work which they had made; and on the seventh day caused all their work which they had made, to fail*. And Elohiym* cursed the seventh day, and made this work (of creating man – the reason for the destruction), taboo*: because in it, they had* exterminated all their work which Elohiym created and made*.*

Now that we've seen quite a different picture begin to emerge than the one painted by the Biblical writers, one obvious question comes to mind; how did this destruction take place. We can deduce that it was not by water, as the destruction of the earth by flood does not happen until later in Genesis chapter seven. We've also seen that the pillar created to withstand water fits into this Biblical flood account. Is it possible, therefore, that an answer to the method of extermination brought on by Elohiym, can be found in the second Pillar which the same legend states was created to withstand fire? To begin, let's see if there is any evidence within the Biblical account itself, that this destruction took place by fire.

When we move on further into chapter 2, we see a new figure appear on the scene. In verse 4 this figure is called The Lord God represented not by a name, but rather simply by the tetragrammaton (meaning four letters in the Greek) of Y-H-W-H who proceeds to form man out of the dust of the ground. This is a third clue that should tell us that something strange is going on in this story and that it has not been told accurately. For, if man had already been created, why is he being created again?

As we'll see, however, the work being done by the figure known only by the four letters Y-H-W-H is neither that of creating (Heb. bara) or making (Heb. asah), as we saw in chapter one, but rather that of molding, which is the word Yatsar in the Hebrew.

We read in Genesis 2:7 these words, And the Lord God formed man from the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul. The one known as the Lord God is molding something that is already there, but apparently something that is fragmented or partial in nature, as it was taken from what was called the dust.

The word dust in this verse, is our fourth clue that will shed enough light on this issue that we can safely say that the story has been severely altered from its original form and one that will tell us how, exactly the earth was destroyed by Elohiym.

The word dust is the word aphar in the Hebrew and can certainly mean dust, however, when we take all of the other evidence into account and look at the other possible meanings of this Hebrew word through the lens of our new, more accurate context, we begin to understand that this word should have been translated using its other, more precise definition, which is ashes or cinders.

This tells us that this is a hidden story of an initial destruction of the earth and furthermore, that the earth and all that was in it, just as the evidence has proven and just as the legend suggests, was destroyed by fire.

This provides for us an altogether different understanding of our origins and builds a more solid and straight foundation than the crooked one upon which Christianity has built not only its widely-accepted version of creation, but all ensuing stories built upon that same crooked foundation. It also sheds more light on the purpose of the Pillar.

CHAPTER SIX

The Shining Gate

So far, we've seen evidence that this pillar was created to be a safe haven from fire and a protective barrier from the flood. It's name defines it as a gateway or portal to a series of underground caves, a living tree and a pillar of fire, but could there be more meaning behind these definitions than what meets the eye? If you haven't guessed by now, there is almost always more than meets the eye.

To gain insight into the various stories within the Bible, Theologians and Pastors are taught various principals of Exegesis. Exegesis is the science of interpretation that has become specifically associated with the Scriptures,[20] however, it is truly the science of interpreting language as it relates to any text in any field of study. The medical field which uses Latin as a basis is a primary example.

Exegesis, however, as it is taught not only to religious students for understanding the Bible, but to others in a wide array of fields for the purposes of nomenclature, classification, etc. is flawed. Although it can be beneficial to enable individuals to function on a basic, working level in their chosen field, it does not allow for a deeper, and therefore more meaningful understanding. The reason for this is because those principals of Exegesis taught in any number of institutions have a common and what I believe to be intentional flaw; they teach the student to go back only as far as the languages upon which their field of study has been built, in the modern era.

Biblical Scholars, therefore, fall into this same trap when searching for answers to Biblical questions. They rely on the definitions of words given within various concordances and lexicons related primarily to the Hebrew, Greek, Aramaic and a few other languages, with which the Bible has been written. Ironically, this approach creates an obstacle to the truth, however rather than a path leading to it.

By focusing on these younger languages, even though these were the languages with which the books of the Bible, in their current version have been written, the real meaning remains covered, and therefore, the truth remains concealed as well; a primary example of which we've just seen in the story of Creation.

Languages like Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek may not seem to fit with one's idea of a modern language, however, these languages are much newer than the oldest written language known to man; that of the Sumerian Cuneiform.

The truth is scattered throughout the various languages, but in my experience the lion's share of real answers have proven to be mostly available within the Sumerian.

This is why most pastors and theologians get stuck (whether they realize it or not), because they are never taught to go beyond the traditional languages of the Hebrew, Aramaic, Greek etc. with which the Bible was written. If they were taught, despite what tradition says, that the Biblical languages stemmed from the oldest written language of the Sumerians and furthermore, were taught how to acquire the answers from that same language, it would assist them greatly in their attempts to understand the message of the Bible; something which, as a fact has eluded them thus far.

Having personally engaged in tens of thousands of hours of in-depth exegesis, it has become glaringly obvious to me that there are irrefutable and extremely important similarities between languages that scholars have previously insisted were not connected. Furthermore, as many scholars and theologians have already found after seeing the insurmountable evidence I've provided from my research, evidence demands a shift in the methodology currently used for studying ancient languages; and this is not the first time something like this has happened.

A good example of scholarly mistakes in identifying similarities or connections between language groups that were previously viewed as 'unrelated', is what happened back in the 1950's, when linguists began seeing far too many similarities between language groups that they previously claimed had no connection such as French, German, English, Italian and many more. They finally put a name to these languages since they could no longer ignore the increasingly-obvious similarities or refute that they had a common source and decided to call them 'Teutonic' or ‘Germanic’ languages, as they are known today.

The same thing holds true for the various ancient languages in question here. As shown previously, the Bible tells us to seek the 'Old Paths' and calls those paths 'Good' (Jeremiah 6:16); and as I’ve previously mentioned, the oldest written language path known, is that of the Sumerian from which many stories in the Bible were taken. But is there any evidence within the Sumerian language that would help us determine the actual builder of the Great Pyramid as well?

In the Enuma Elish, the Sumerian story of creation from which the Biblical story of Adam in the Garden in Eden was taken, there are a group of individuals referred to as the Anunnaki. These same Anunnaki are also called the Igigi. As the story goes, after a great war, these Anunnaki called upon their new leader, Marduk, to relieve them of a burden of labor, which had developed as a result of their rebellion from the Creator.

In coming to their aid, as a solution, Marduk detailed a genetic blueprint for them, which involved the murder of the Son of God, named Kingu.

Following Marduk's directions, the arteries of Kingu were slit and his blood was used to create the new worker species known as Adam. The Anunnaki were thankful for this act and offered their gratitude as we see in this excerpt from that epic:

"Then the Anunnaki…opened their mouths to speak to Marduk: 'Now that you have freed us and remitted our labor how shall we make a return for this? Let us build a temple and call it…The Parakku."

The word Parakku has been somewhat of a mystery for scholars who have translated it to mean various things. Outside of a proper context, however, translation has little value. If we keep in mind the theme of this book, and are mindful of the hypothesis that the Sumerian language might shed light on our search for the builder of the Pyramid, let's look to see if the description of this Parakku might have anything to do with the characteristics of that same Pyramid.

The Sumerian language is made up of logograms. A logogram can either be a single vowel or a series of letters such as a vowel, consonant, vowel or consonant, vowel, consonant or a single vowel and consonant next to each other (i.e. E, A,GE, UDU, PIL etc.) These logograms can have meaning in and of themselves, or, when placed together can provide an entirely different meaning. Unless, however one understands the proper context into which these logograms must be placed, that meaning is almost always hidden. This was the intention from the beginning.

When I break the word Parakku down into its corresponding logograms, I find some very elucidating translations.

The first logogram within the word Parakku is PA. PA can be written as BARA or as PAD in the Cuneiform which carries the meaning of throne, dwelling place, nest or dike, respectively.

The second logogram within Parakku is RA, which can also be rendered as $\mathbf{RE_7}$ or $\mathbf{ARA_4}$ (The numbers in the subscript are simply a way for linguists to determine the pronunciation of certain logograms.) This logogram means bright, polished, to shine or to blaze.

The third and final logogram of interest within the word Parakku is KU which means noble or entrance.

Now, this is where exegesis in regards to the Sumerian language gets to be fun, but is also the very reason that most scholars and theologians miss the mark when determining the meaning of any given text. Unless we have a proper context into which we can place these logograms, they are nothing more than confusing fragments of old words. When a proper context is found (which takes much research), the logograms become like pieces of an ancient puzzle, coming together to form a beautiful and telling picture.

We have already seen that when we look at the history of the Pyramid, per Freemasonic tradition, it is likely that the Great Pyramid was one-and-the-same as one of the great stones created by Jubal and Jabal, the sons of Lamech in the Bible for the purpose of withstanding a great deluge. When we connect this piece of data with the meaning of the logogram PA in the Sumerian language, in reference to the PArakku built by the Anunnaki, we get our first connection with this Parakku and the Pyramid, which is the word dike, which is a barrier to withstand water.

Knowing a little history about the Great Pyramid can help us determine the second definition of the next logogram, which is RA.

History tells us that the Great Pyramid was once encased in highly-polished, bright white limestone which actually glowed when it reflected the sun. These casing stones were pillaged in later years, but they once caused the pyramid to show like a beacon for people to see for miles around. Knowing this fact, it is safe to discern that the meaning of the logogram RA that should be used to translate this word, Parakku is polished.

The third and final logogram within the word Parakku, is KU. Knowing that this structure was made for the god Marduk and that he was considered nobility in the eyes of the Anunnaki, the meaning of the third logogram, KU, that we would use, therefore, would be noble.

When we put these three definitions together, the first meaning we get for the Sumerian word Parakku is polished dike of a noble, which corroborates what we already know, not only about the highly-polished casing stones that once covered the exterior of the Great Pyramid or the fact that it also served as a protective barrier from the water of the great flood, but also that it was an edifice associated specifically with Egyptian nobility. (And although there is no concrete evidence, I firmly believe that the Igigi spoken of in the Sumerian writings, were one-and-the-same as the Egyptians, which is why their names are so similar and why they are both associated with the Great Pyramid.)

Furthermore, the above logograms can also carry the following definitions, just as easily as the first one mentioned: Bright throne of a noble, Blazing entrance to the nest and Polished dwelling of a god (as the logogram KU is also GU_7 in Cuneiform, which is pronounced god.)

Based on the evidence I've been able to uncover thus far, it becomes not only plausible but highly likely that the dwelling place called the Parakku built by the igigi for the god Marduk, is simply another name for the Great Pyramid at Giza.

CHAPTER SEVEN

A True Identity Crisis

We've already seen the inextricable link between the Great Pyramid and the Planet Saturn, so it is also very important to know that the one who is said to have resided within this structure, the god Marduk, is also connected with Saturn.

The original Sabbath day or day of rest, was established to honor Marduk for providing the rest for the gods as a result of the creation of man. This is precisely where we get the word Saturday literally meaning Saturnday, the day of rest established to honor this 'god'. Yet another example in a long list of examples, of how a Christian belief stems directly from a much older and even pagan culture.

Thus far, we've seen that many Biblical stories came from the Sumerian tradition, that the Parakku is simply another name for the Great Pyramid and that the Pillar placed on the border of Egypt was specifically for the figure hidden behind the letters Y-H-W-H, just as the Parakku was made as a dwelling place for Marduk. Is it possible that there is a connection between the figure hidden behind the letters Y-H-W-H and the Sumerian god called Marduk, the leader of the Anunnaki? Furthermore, is there any further evidence that can help us ascertain the specific identity of the builders of this great structure, known as the igigi?

There is another interesting verse in the book of Genesis in verse 24 of chapter 3 that states, The Lord God (the one hidden behind the letters YHWH)… placed at the east of the garden of Eden a Cherub, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life. The word for Cherub in this verse is the Hebrew word Keruv pronounced Cherub or Kerub in the English and simply means an angelic being flanking the throne of god. This word has no known derivation, however, in the Hebrew language, which, as I've discovered, is always a tell-tale sign that it would prove wise to look to an older language to understand its meaning.

As with so many other words, in order to understand the meaning of the word Cherub, it can and should also be broken down into its corresponding (and original) Sumerian logograms; and when I do this, as you'll see, the logograms related to Cherub or Keruv, once again, shed light on what this word really means.

The logograms KI and UR make up the first part of the word Cherub, which is the logogram KUR, meaning, mountain. The second logogram UB means angle. The Sumerian Cuneiform meaning of the word Cherub, which has no known root in the Hebrew language with which it was written, therefore, is angle mountain, seemingly a fitting description of the Great Pyramid of Giza, but when we look at the words flaming sword, describing what the Cherub was holding, we can learn even more about this mysterious picture that has been painted for us.

The Hebrew words for flaming sword are lahat chereb. Lahat is the word for flaming and means to burn or blaze and to hide by the use of magic or occult arts and chereb simply means any object with a sharp edge used for cutting, such as a sword, knife, engraving tool, axe etc. The meaning of flaming sword in the Hebrew language, therefore, is a blazing cutting tool used for hiding by the use of magic or occult arts.

To connect this definition of the Cherub holding a flaming sword with what we've already learned, let's recall earlier references to the Pillar.

We've already seen that another name for the Pillar mentioned in the book of Isaiah was Columna Lucis, meaning a pillar of fire and we've seen that the meaning of the Parakku carries with it the meaning of a blazing throne.

Furthermore, we've learned that the definition of the sword, an object with a sharp edge used for cutting, is similar to the Greek word obeliskos, which means a needle or a spit. These connections and the others we've seen are substantial, but if we could determine that there was a connection between the figure known as YHWH and the Anunnaki who built this structure, that would go even further to prove that these monuments are one-and-the-same.

From my research I've found that it is common throughout the ancient texts, especially the Bible, for the writers to take one object (or person) and 'split' them into two seemingly different objects or persons, for the purpose of deception. This is one reason the Bible was given its name. There are generally two reasons given for the name Bible. One version states that it has been derived from the port in Greece which became known as Byblos, because it was there that the papyrus was imported on which the scribes wrote the various books contained therein.

The second version states that the name is derived from the Greek word for books, which is Byblos, referring to the books of which the Bible is comprised. Both of those explanations are accurate, however, just like so many other issues fraught with hidden layers of meaning, when it comes to the meaning of the word Bible, it is no different.

The Bible is full of dichotomies. It has two testaments, the Old and the New. It has two primary characters known as Gods, Elohiym and The Lord God, hidden behind the Tetragrammaton of YHWH. It has an antagonist and a protagonist known as God and the Devil. It has two primary doctrines known as the Law and Grace. It has the recurring theme of twins, such as Cain and Abel and Jacob and Esau. It has two locations at variance with one another known as Heaven and Hell and is the stage of an ongoing battle between good and evil. It also has two groups of people known as flocks or more specifically folds as in sheep folds; and this is the reason for the true and deeper meaning of the name Bible.

The prefix dou means two, the prefix tri means three and the suffixes ble and ple both mean precisely the same thing, fold. Double therefore means two-fold and triple means three-fold. The prefix bi also means two, as does the prefix dou. We see this in words such as Bicycle, Bicuspid, Bifocal, Bilateral etc. Knowing this, we can therefore understand that the word Bible also means two-fold.

We see this theme played out in the names of characters in the Bible as well. Abram's name was changed to Abraham, Sara's name was changed to Sarah, Jacob's name was changed to Israel, Saul's name was changed to Paul, Simon's name was changed to Peter, Mark was also known as John, Joseph's name was changed to Barnabus, Daniel's name was changed to Belteshazzar, Ben-oni's name was changed to Benjamin, etc.

In the present-day, when someone uses a different name, that name is commonly known as a pseudonym, but a second name is also known by an older term as well, referred to as an alias.

Is it possible that an understanding of this same theme of name changes found all throughout the Bible, in which the figure hidden behind the letters YHWH plays a prominent role, can shed even more light on the true identity of the builder of the Pyramid?

To first answer this question, we must turn to a language older than the language from which the letters Y-H-W-H were derived, which is that of the Aramaic.

The letters Y-H-W-H have never been adequately explained by scholars or theologians. The traditional names attributed to these letters are either Yahweh or Jehovah, however, those names are absolutely false and never even occur in the texts, themselves.

The scribes who wrote the Bible sowed fraud and lies (referred to as leaven by Esu (Jesus)), all throughout its pages, just as we are told in Jeremiah 8:8, again, which tells us that their words are fraudulent. This is further confirmed in Titus 1:4 when we are told not to give heed to Jewish fables. That same verse in Jeremiah can just as easily be translated as, the pen of the scribes is a liar. And the theme of fraud was never more present than within the letters Y-H-W-H.

The scribes took it upon themselves to create a name or alias out of those letters by filling them in with the vowels of another name for God found within the Bible, that of Adonai. It might seem strange that the scribes would do such a thing, but a study of the Bible shows that it is full of this type of literary license as well as codes and ciphers.

A cipher is a a method of encryption by which units of plain text are substituted with cipher text according to a regular system.[21] In other words, it is a method of hiding a message, within the text, the decryption and understanding of which is dependent upon special knowledge; primarily knowledge of the context.

Examples of these concealed codes and ciphers can be found, among other places, in the book of Jeremiah, where we find the use of a well-known cipher.

In the case of Jeremiah, we see the employment of a method of encryption known as the Atbash Cipher. In this particular cipher, A is substituted for Z, B is substituted for Y, C is substituted for X and so on. An easy way to think of it is by cutting the alphabet in half, after the letter M , flipping the second half horizontally, and then laying both halves one on top of the other. Using the English alphabet, it would appear like this:

A B C D E F G H I J K L M

Z Y X W V U T S R Q P O N

In Jeremiah chapter 25 verse 26 and chapter 51 verse 41 we see this Atbash Cipher at work in the Hebrew alphabet when the Scribes encode the word Sheshakh, which, when decoded by using the cipher, renders as Bavel which signifies Babel or Babylon.

Another method of encryption used within scripture is known as Albam.[22] This form of encryption uses a similar system of letter replacement, however the second half of the alphabet which is split, is not flipped, but rather put directly under the first half of the alphabet. It would appear like this using the English alphabet:

A B C D E F G H I J K L M

N O P Q R S T U V W X Y Z

An example of the Albam cipher being used in the Hebrew scripture can be found in Isaiah chapter 7 when Rezin, the king of Syria and Pekah, the son of Remaliah, king of Israel are scheming against Ahaz, king of Judah. In verse six of this chapter Albam is used to encrypt Tabeal, t b'l, giving us the name r m l, or Remala indicating Remaliah.[23] The Hebrew language, as with other Abjad languages such as Aramaic, Arabic or Mandaic uses no vowels, thus, when deciphering, you get T, B, L for TABEAL and R, M, L rendered as REMALIAH when the vowels are placed between the consonants.

This is why knowing the context is so important when trying to understand the ancient texts; and by providing a false and misleading context within the Bible, those who wrote it have been able to rule for thousands of years, at humanity's expense.

The name Jehovah or Yahovah (sometimes called Yahweh) has never been an actual name and is never found within the pages of the Bible. The name Jehovah is simply the result of the Jewish Scribes fraudulently inserting the vowels A-O-A from another name in the Bible, that of Adonai, into the letters Y-H-W-H. By using this type of textual manipulation they were able to create a false name and use that name within the false context of the Bi-ble that they crafted as well.

When I investigated the letters YHWH, I discovered that by transliterating them back to the language of Aramaic, an older language which preceded Hebrew, I was able to uncover information that enabled me to decipher the textual manipulation of the Scribes and ultimately identity the figure hidden behind the alias of the Tetragrammaton.

In the Aramaic language, the Hebrew letter Y transliterates back to I (i). The letter H transliterates back to A, the letter W transliterates back to U, and again, the fourth letter transliterates to A. The Aramaic version of the letters Y-H-W-H, therefore are I-A-U-A. This does not have great meaning at this point, however, we've already seen evidence showing that the Scribes, through their ciphers, turn things backwards to skew the truth. A verse from Isaiah chapter 29 verse 16 further corroborates this fact when it states there will be men who turn things upside down to make things appear as the creator's doing or what that verse calls the potter's clay. The phrase upside down in this verse is Hophek from the root Hafak, and also means to turn backwards.

What aspects, therefore, of these tactics of removing letters and turning things backwards have the Scribes utilized to conceal the true identity of the character hidden behind the letters Y-H-W-H or I-A-U-A?

To solve this riddle, I discovered that the older letters of I-A-U-A needed to be turned back around, into their original state. When I did this, I got the original order of A-U-A-I and when I re-inserted the letters that I speculated had been taken out of this older version of YHWH, those of N-N-K, I was able to further deduce the name of those same gods that the Sumerians tell us built the Parakku, the Anunaki.

The tetragrammaton of YHWH incorrectly translated as Jehovah in the Bible, is simply an alias for the ancient Anunaki. This is also why the word Lord is used to describe these individuals in the Bible, as the word Lord is phonetically the same as the word lowered, which is yet another shrouded reference to their identity as well as their spiritual status.

The Sumerian creation epic called the Enuma Elish tells us a bit more about these same 'gods' when, in the sixth tablet it refers to them as The Fallen. Interestingly, the root of the letters YHWH in Hebrew is YADA which also means To Fall, a fact that Biblical scholars like to conveniently ignore because it does not fit into their doctrines. This is another example of why it is so important to seek the truth.

There is also one other character in the Bible who is said to have fallen in the fourteenth chapter of the book of Isaiah.

In verse twelve of that chapter we read,

> How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning! How art thou cut down to the ground, which didst weaken the nations.

We now have a connection between The Anunaki, The Lord God or Jehovah, hidden behind the tetragrammaton in the Bible and Lucifer in that they are all described as fallen, but is it possible that all of these characters are actually the same person? To find an answer to this, we must take a trip west of the Great Pyramid, to what I've discovered is the lost location of the Garden in Eden.

CHAPTER EIGHT

The Garden of the Fallen

The lost location of the Garden in Eden can be ascertained partially, as I've shown, because of what is written in Genesis 3:24 where the Pyramid is described as a Cherub with a flaming sword, East of Eden, as I've explained previously. (I also speak about this more in my book entitled The Tribulation found at www.TheTribulation.us)

The book of Ezekiel, chapter 28 verses 13 through 16 also helps us further understand the relation of the Pyramid itself, which we've seen as a symbol of Saturn, to the Garden in Eden. In this passage, we read of the anointed cherub that covered who was perfect until iniquity was found in them. Verse 13 tells us firstly where, specifically this Cherub was when it says:

Thou hast been in Eden the garden of God

This tells us that the anointed cherub had been in Eden at one time, but due to iniquity, was no longer suitable to be in the Creator's presence.

This same chapter, in verses 2 and 12, interestingly refers to this same Cherub as the ruler of Tyre, which in the Hebrew is Tsore and Turos in the Greek as seen in Matthew 11:21. It has always been taught that the city of Tyre is simply a city on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea north of Israel. Although this is the earthly location of a city by that name, the name Turos or Tyre is actually the name of a place far from this earth. To find the true meaning of this other place, we must once again turn to the Sumerian Cuneiform.

When we break down the name of the city Turos into the Sumerian, we get the logograms of TUR and US, (the letter 'U' takes the place of the letter 'O' in Sumerian). The logogram of US has a more archaic rendering in the Cuneiform which is gis, pronounced ingish and is also rendered as dis.

These two logograms are very significant in the Sumerian language as the combination of TUR and DIS, pronounced Tordis or Tortoise are one of only two words in the Sumerian language which specifically refer to the planet Saturn.

The name Saturn, as evidenced by many languages and cultures, is simply another name for Satan. One example of this is the old Gaelic pronunciation of the name Satan, which was Satarn.

What I now know from merging the information I've gathered from these verses in the Bible with the knowledge from the more ancient logograms of the Sumerian language, is that the ruler of Saturn, besides being an enemy of the Creator as seen all throughout the Bible as well as in other languages, such as the Arabic, was, just as stated in the above verse from Ezekiel 28, actually in the Garden in Eden.

Moreover, Genesis chapter 3 further tells us that the enemy in Eden was known by the name Nachash, which comes from the Hebrew word Helel, meaning to shine and is a reference to the bringer of light, known as Lucifer. Lucifer and Satan, therefore, were apparently one-and-the-same person as well. This is also why the Pyramid, the home of Marduk, another name for Satan, was polished in order that it might shine, as a symbol of the shining one for whom this residence was made.

More evidence to tie the figure Lucifer to the figure Satan, the ruler of Saturn or King of Tyre, can be found within the Latin.

The word for Venus in Latin is Phosphorous and literally translates as Lucifer. Phosphorous is also the name of a chemical element which, when it comes inside of an oxygenated environment becomes a Phosphate. The word Phosphate, however, is yet another play on words and is actually an anagram for the two Greek words Phos and Pater. (This is possible when we understand how the Scribes and Freemasons have manipulated the language by using various tactics, including the use of the letters ‘h’, ‘n’, ‘r’ and ‘l’ (L) interchangeably). Phos in the Greek means light and Pater means Father, but is really just a play on the word Potter, in reference to the entity who molded man from the clay in Genesis chapter 2. Phosphate or Phos Pater, therefore, means Father of Light, corroborating once again, the idea of the bringer of light, light-bearer or potter of light, Lucifer.

We can safely deduce, at this point that the character hidden behind the letters YHWH, called Jehovah or Yaweh, The Anunaki, Satan, Marduk, the King of Tyre and Lucifer, are all names or aliases for the same person.

So, is there anything about this Phosphate or Lucifer that could further help us connect it to the planet Saturn? Well, as a matter of fact, there is.

A Phosphate is a six-sided molecule. The planet Saturn also has a unique characteristic, as it is the only planet that is known to have a hexagon on its north pole. This six-sided figure is precisely the same shape, therefore, as the hexagonal phosphate. This phosphate, therefore, is indicative of the light that was brought by Lucifer or YHWH, the bearer of that same light. We must discover, therefore, what a phosphate truly is.

A Phosphate is one of two primary molecules that make up a very important aspect of life as we know it, called…DNA. The phosphate is known by another name, however, used as a general term for six-sided molecules. That name is Pyran, and if that sounds familiar to you, then you probably realize that this word has the same root as the words mentioned earlier of Py or Pi. You might also recognize that the word Pyran is very similar to the word Pylar. But these words are more similar than you might think when we use the same rules of language implemented by the Scribes and Freemasons, as noted previously.

When we replace the 'L' in Pylar with 'r' and the 'r' in Pylar with an 'n' (as I mentioned earlier as is common with the replacement of the letters h, l, r and n), it is easy to see that the word Pylar is actually the same as the word Pyran. This is because the Pylar or Pyramid is a symbol of not only the planet Saturn, as has already been established, but also a symbol of the Pyran or Phosphate, that molecule which makes up one half of your chain of DNA.

Knowing that the figures The Lord God, Yahweh, Jehovah, The Anunaki, the King of Tyre, Satan, the Shining One and Lucifer are all names for the same person and knowing that this was indeed the same individual for whom the Parakku or Great Pyramid at Giza was built and knowing that the Pyramid at Giza or Pylar is a symbol of the Pyran or Phosphate molecule (also called Molec as shown previously), without which DNA would not exist, we can now deduce that this builder of the Great Pyramid, a symbol of that same molecule, also constructed DNA in its current form.

CHAPTER NINE

The Human Temple

The other main part of the chain of DNA is known as Ribose or RNA. The Phosphate is linked to this Ribose like a chain, forming what is known as double-helix DNA. If you recall, the word for the Shining One in Eden came from the Hebrew word Helel, which means to shine. This is also the reason for the word HEL-ix, in reference to DNA and also tells us that the phosphate was one-and-the-same as the light that this same individual was said to have brought.

But let's explore for a moment, just what this Ribose has to do with the Pyramid.

The same entity who was said in Ezekiel 28 to be in Eden, the Garden of God was also said in verse 14 to have walked among the stones of fire. The phrase walked among, however, literally means to rob. These stones of fire, therefore, were actually stolen by this entity, whose name was Lucifer, hidden behind many aliases. To find out what these stones of fire were, we must start by looking at the evidence in the creation account that tells us what, exactly, was taken from Eden and by whom.

When we look at the evidence, there was one thing that was taken in Eden. It was called by three different names, however, just as we've seen before, these names were references to the same thing. The first thing that was taken, was taken by the Lord God, who we've seen is the same as the figure Lucifer and Satan, the King of Saturn referred to as Tyre in the Bible. We read in Genesis 2:15,

The Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden

Next, we read these words in Genesis 2:21,

*The Lord God caused a deep sleep (Heb. 'Tardemah' = trance) to fall upon Adam… and took one of his ribs

Thirdly, as we move on further into this story, we see in chapter 3 verse 6, that the woman, took of the fruit of the tree, and did eat*

We've gathered ample evidence to support the fact that the identity of many characters in the Bible has been intentionally hidden by the use of pseudonyms or aliases. Is it possible that the same tactic has been used to conceal objects as well? Is it possible that figures of speech such as personification or metaphor have been used for this purpose?

We see that Adam is involved in two out of three instances when something was taken in this scenario. He, himself was taken, his rib was taken and then the fruit was taken. Is it possible that Adam, his rib and the fruit are all names for basically the same thing? What if the word fruit was simply a metaphor for the fruit of Adam's loins? What if the tree was a metaphor for Adam himself? Furthermore, what if The Lord God, was yet another alias for Eve?

Our first clue comes from the book of Ezekiel. In chapter 31, beginning in verse 3. Here we read,

Behold, the Assyrian was a cedar in Lebanon with fair branches, and with a shadowing shroud, and of a high stature; and his top was among the thick boughs.

Verses 8 and 9 go on to say,

The cedars in the garden of God could not hide him: the fir trees were not like his boughs, and the chestnut trees were not like his branches; nor any tree in the garden of God was like unto him in his beauty. I have made him fair by the multitude of his branches: so that all the trees of Eden, that were in the garden of God, envied him.

Verse 11 then states,

I have therefore delivered him into the hand of the mighty one of the heathen; he shall surely deal with him: I have driven him out for his wickedness.

We then read in verses 16 and 18,

I made the nations to shake at the sound of his fall, when I cast him down to hell with them that descend into the pit: …and all the trees of Eden*, To whom art thou thus like in glory and in greatness among* the trees of Eden*? Yet shalt thou be brought down with* the trees of Eden*…*

We see in these verses an obvious metaphor of a tree being applied to someone, but who could this tree be?

The tree is described firstly as being in Eden, the Garden of God. We know that Adam was in Eden. We see this when we read in Genesis 2:15, The Lord God took the man and put him into the Garden of Eden. Could this be a description therefore of Adam? We are also told that this tree was beautiful and had fair branches and that it was of a high stature with thick boughs.

In the Song of Solomon, we see the woman, Eve, describing her lover, in chapter five. Throughout verses 10 - 16 we read,

My beloved is white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand. His locks are bushy…his eyes are as the eyes of doves… his cheeks are as a bed of spices…his belly is as bright ivory, overlaid with sapphires… his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent as the cedars…he is altogether lovely.

In both of these instances, we see the person in question compared to not just a tree, but a tree in Eden, which was the location of Adam. The description in Ezekiel also states that this tree had been driven out, just like Adam was driven out of the Garden. If there is any point of contention regarding the similarity between Adam and the tree in Ezekiel, it is the fact that the passage in Ezekiel describes this tree in verse 3 as the Assyrian. Is it also possible to draw a correlation, therefore, between Adam and the Assyrian?

The answer is 'yes'.

We find the clue that can help us arrive at this conclusion when we see that the Assyrian in Ezekiel chapter 31 is also described as a Cedar just as we've seen Adam was. Moreover, the Hebrew word for Cedar is Erez which means simply a cedar tree. We've already seen that this passage, however, is not speaking literally of a tree, but rather uses personification to speak about this tree by attributing human characteristics to it. This is because this tree in question obviously is a person, otherwise known as Adam. But is there more to this tree than meets the eye?

To bring together the pieces of the puzzle that we are finding here, despite the linguistic attempts of the Scribes to scatter them, we must once again turn to the Sumerian language. When we do this and break down the primitive Hebrew root word for Cedar, which is Araz, into its corresponding logograms, we get the exact logograms AR and AZ.

Firstly, the logogram AR is the same as the logograms HAR and UR in the Cuneiform, which carry the meaning of the soul as well as a spiral arm bracelet of silver or other precious substance. This spiral bracelet was worn on the arms of many deities or ruling figures depicted in ancient Sumerian, Babylonian and even Egyptian hieroglyphs. Furthermore, what I've personally discovered is that this bracelet was actually a secret, hidden symbol worn by those entities, as a type of badge, signifying that they were the keepers of the sacred knowledge of genetics or spiral DNA. Thus the real reason for this bracelet's spiral or helical shape. (See my book The Red Dragon and the Sheep at www.PaxeonPublishing.com).

Anunnaki Wearing Spiral Arm Bracelet Known As ‘HAR’ In Sumerian Or ‘Tabbat’ In Hebrew As A Reference To The ‘Table’ Of Testimony Which Held The ‘Code’ Or Law

The logograms HAR or AR or UR also correspond to the word tabbat in Hebrew, meaning bracelet. This word, in nearly all Bibles, has been mistranslated, however as the tables or tablets of testimony upon which the law was written before being placed into the Ark of the Covenant. In one version of the Bible from the 1800's, however, it is properly translated as tabbats, meaning bracelets.

To shed further light on this subject, let me briefly explain the real story of the Ark of the Covenant.

The word for Ark is Arown in Hebrew, but when broken down into the Cuneiform logograms this word transliterates as AR and UN. The logogram AR, as I've shown, represents DNA or more broadly, genetics or the knowledge thereof. The logogram UN means the people or the population.

The real, true story of the code (as in Hammurabi's Code) or law, therefore that we are told in the Biblical rendition was inscribed on the tablets (tabbat/spiral/HAR) by the Lord God (Lucifer) and that were placed into the Ark (AR+UN), was simply another shrouded story concealing the real process that was taking place of a type of genetic material (code/law) being inserted (spliced) into the DNA (AR) of the People (UN) or ARUN, meaning Ark. (To see more on this topic you can read my paper Name Changes in the Bible and The Sacred Spiral of the Ark at www.PaxeonPublishing.com. See graphic on the next page describing the actual events surrounding the Ark of the Covenant.)

ARK = 'AROWN' (Hebrew)

'AROWN' = 'AR' (HAR) + 'UN' (Sumerian)

'AR' (HAR)= 'Genetics'='The Word'='Tabbat'/'Table(t)' of 'Code'/'Law'

'UN' = 'People' or 'Population'

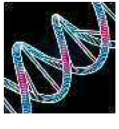
THEREFORE...

When YHWH' Instructed Moses To Place The 'TABLES' Into The 'ARK'

(Exodus 25:16 and 40:20)

She Was Instructing Him To Place The Stolen 'HAR' (Genetic Material)

Into The 'HAR' (Genetic Material) Of The 'Un' (People)



To decipher the meaning of the Cedar tree, we've firstly uncovered the significance of the logogram AR, as it represents genetics and even the soul, but what of the logogram AZ?

The logogram AZ is the same in the Cuneiform as the logogram ASA both of which mean cage or fetter and both of which are devices used to incarcerate. When we put the two logograms representing the Cedar together, therefore as ARAZ, we see a fuller picture of what has been hidden beneath this allegory.

We are told in Ezekiel 31:9 that The Lord God, represented by the letters Y-H-W-H, was the one who made this tree, Adam (AKA 'The Assyrian') handsome because of the multitude of his branches. Here we read:

I have made him handsome because of the multitude of his branches (a metaphor for offspring): so that all the trees of Eden, that were in the garden of God, envied him

Furthermore, we read in verses 10, 11 and 16 of that chapter:

Therefore thus saith the Lord God; Because thou hast lifted up thyself in height*, and he hath shot up his top among the thick boughs, and his heart is lifted up in his* height*;* I have therefore delivered him into the hand of the mighty one of the heathen*; he shall surely* deal with him: I have driven him out for his wickedness (and) …. cast him down to hell with them that descend into the pit.

The one responsible for this splicing of the DNA spoken of above in the allegory of the Ark of the Covenant, was represented by the letters Y-H-W-H in the Bible and this entity is the same one, as we have just seen, that sent Adam, also known as the Assyrian, described as a Cedar, to hell.

Hell is a type of prison, which is why the word pit is used in Ezekiel 31:16 in connection with the Hell to which the Assyrian was sent. The word for pit is bowr in the Hebrew and means a cistern or well. It is associated with Hell in that verse, because in the ancient days empty cisterns were used as prisons or holding tanks as we see from the story of Joseph, for example who was thrown into a well by his brothers. If you'll recall, the word Hell is also a play on the word Helel, which is not only the name given to Lucifer, referred to as the ruler of Babylon, in Isaiah chapter 14, but also a shrouded reference to DNA, otherwise known as double helix DNA.

Therefore, the real reason that Adam, known as the Assyrian, was described as a Cedar can be found from the Cuneiform logograms AR and AZ, the root of the word for Cedar (ARAZ) in Hebrew. Uncovering the meaning of the words this way, enables us to discover that the prison or pit into which Adam was placed, metaphorically referred to as a Cedar Tree was literally a genetic (AR) cage (AZ) called DNA, in which his offspring reside, today, in the most literal sense. In other words, the ancient genetic secret that has been concealed for thousands of years beneath false religious doctrines, layers of language, allegories and enigmatic symbolism, is that DNA is a prison built by Lucifer, disguised as the Lord God.

The six-sided phosphate molecule or pyran with which DNA was constructed, is just one more symbolic clue in a long line of clues revealing the fact that is was the Ruler of Tyre, Saturn, hell itself, who, disguised as the Lord God or YHWH, took us from the ashes to mold us into what we are today and in the process, put us into this genetic cage.

Interestingly, we see the same story told of another individual in the Bible, who later became a Pharaoh, which is also the real reason that in the last verse of Ezekiel chapter 31 we read these words, again clarifying even further who the Assyrian, Adam truly was:

*To whom art thou thus like in glory and in greatness among the trees of Eden? Yet shalt thou be brought down with the trees of Eden…This is Pharaoh…

The word for Assyrian in the Hebrew, further describing Adam, Pharaoh or the Cedar Tree that was put into a genetic prison, is Ashshur, meaning a step. Interestingly, the word Eden, the name of the place where Adam was said to be placed, also means a plain also known as a step.

We are getting closer to discovering the truth of this matter, but could there actually be another, more elucidating meaning of the name Assyrian? To find out, we need to once again take the primitive Hebrew root word for Assyrian and break it down into the logograms of the Cuneiform.

The root word of Ashshur (Assyrian) in the Hebrew is Ashar, which simply means to walk, go on or move forward. The Sumerian logograms that comprise Ashar, however, paint for us a more accurate picture.

The first logogram, AS (pronounced ash) means alone. This is the same thing the Lord God (YHWH), who we now know is Lucifer, said about Adam in Genesis 2:18, as well when we read 'it is not good that man should be alone'. The second logogram, AR you may recognize from the previous explanation of the symbol of genetic knowledge in the discussion of the spiral arm bracelet.

AR is the same, once again as HAR or UR and is a secret word and symbol representing genetics, genetic knowledge or the soul, as it is this genetic cage by which the soul has been captured.

What we have here in the description of Adam or Pharaoh being described as an Assyrian was someone who was not appropriate in the eyes of the Lord God, Lucifer as being unique or one (meaning 'whole') in their genetic makeup. This would not be a problem, if the figure hidden behind this tetragrammaton was a good entity as the Pastors of Christianity have falsely and often times unwittingly taught for more than 2000 years, however, as I explained previously, these four letters Y-H-W-H hide a much more sinister figure whose intentions for incarcerating Adam or the Pharaoh within this genetic prison she created were more self-serving and nefarious than we've ever been told.

When we pronounce the letters YHWH, this ends up sounding much like the word you. In the Hebrew alphabet, there is no letter 'w' as there is in the English alphabet. The letter used for 'w', as in the letters YHWH, is the letter vav. Vav is also used to represent the letter 'u'.

In the Sumerian Cuneiform, one of the definitions of the letter 'u' is a female sheep. In the English language, we would call a female sheep a ewe, pronounced exactly like the letter vav. Eve, therefore, is simply another way of saying ewe. What's more, another root of the letters YHWH is HAVA, meaning to breathe as the Lord God was said to have done when she breathed life or in-spired meaning placed the spire (pyran) into Adam. This root, however, is connected to Eve, as well.

One of the tenets of Hermetic philosophy, (the philosophy of Freemasonry and the Illuminati), is as above, so below, meaning as things have happened in heaven, so they will happen on earth. I've shown quite succinctly throughout my other writings as well, that the Lord God, Lucifer, Satan and the fallen Anunaki were cast out of paradise, that they are all the same person and that they are all feminine in nature, as they all represent the feminine entity who rebelled against the true Creator, while at the same time, raising herself up and masquerading as God.

This is why HAVA, the root of the letters YHWH which hide the figure Lucifer, the molder or presser of man in Genesis 2, is also the exact root for the name Eve, Adam's wife.

When we take this word Hava back further, however, to the root Ava, we get the meaning to covet or to lust, both of which are the case with this entity Lucifer who coveted the position of Creator to the point of being cast out of His presence.

It becomes apparent, based on the overwhelming evidence I've uncovered that has been intentionally concealed for thousands of years, that Lucifer, having disguised herself as the male figure the Lord God, has taken up residence here on earth inside of the genetic temple of man that she conceived on Saturn and ultimately built in Eden for that purpose. She has merged herself with the stolen souls that she has placed into those same genetic houses, as an attempt to escape her own original prison of Saturn, also called hell, into which she was initially placed.

We are told of her escape from incarceration in places like Revelation 20:7 when we are told that she will be released after a thousand years to deceive the nations. If we look at this verse from a preterist perspective, however, we can ascertain that this has already happened. The evidence I've uncovered would also corroborate this fact, which means that humankind, referred to as the nations in that verse, is under a powerful deception, currently; and this deception is enabled by the construct she created called DNA.

This may sound strange at first, but we are told in Revelation 18:23 that by her sorceries the entire world will be deceived. The word for sorceries here is the Greek word Pharmakaia, from which we get the word Pharmaceuticals, which are inextricably linked to DNA and have flooded the market, today. These pharmaceuticals can only operate on the premise that they are able to effectuate change on a genetic level, which tells us that this deception by the use of pharmaceuticals would have never been possible without the unlawful creation of DNA.

CHAPTER TEN

Exposing The Light Bearer

We see this woman, the light-bringer, portrayed throughout history symbolically in statues and petroglyphs such as those pictured on the following pages, which include 1) the Roman goddess Juno, 2) the British goddess Brittania 3) the Phoenician goddess Astarte and 4) the Babylonian goddess Ishtar (both known as Esther in the Bible) 5) The Sumerian goddess Inanna 6) the Hindu goddess Lakshmi 7) the Americanized version of this figure known as Columbia (after whom the District of Columbia has been aptly named in Washington, the Capitol of the United States as well as the figure representing Columbia Pictures) 8) the Statue of Liberty (the Freemasonic representation of this goddess for the United States, as well as France, the country from whose Freemasons they received it) 9) the Greek goddess Ananke and last but not least 10) the Roman goddess Lucifera, which is the same as the Greek goddess Selena, both of whom were also known as Phosphoros, which as we've seen previously, is also the Latin word for Lucifer.

There are several points of interest that should be noted about these 'goddesses'.

Firstly, two of them even have the names Lucifera and Phosphoros, both of which are overt references to Lucifer. Secondly, another of these goddesses goes by the name Ananke, which is simply another spelling of the name Anunaki, some of whom are called the fallen, just like Lucifer. This is because Lucifer was the feminine Anunaki who rebelled or 'fell' to earth, and brought this 'seed of false light' called 'molec' (a concealed reference to the actual phosphate molec-ule), to unlawfully engage in genetic manipulation, thereby mixing her seed with that of man. This is the reason we read in Daniel 2:43,

And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men…

We again see evidence of the identity of this iron on the periodic table, represented by the symbol 'Fe', a shrouded reference to this female.

All of these pictures depict the same character, just as the Lord God, Satan, Lucifer, the Ruler of Tyre, the fallen Anunaki, Eve and others about whom I have not spoken, such as Delilah, Rebekkah, Mary (whose name means 'the rebellion'), are all aliases for the same entity, otherwise known in Christian circles as The Bride of Christ which is actually just an anagram of the word Bird, in reference to the winged, fallen Anunaki, which is why many times these goddesses are depicted with wings, such as the Egyptian goddess Isis, the mother of Horus, a representation of Jesus, pictured below.

Isis the winged mother of Horus who was a representation of Jesus

And to discover just why this rebel Anunnaki can be considered the Bride of Christ, we need to look more closely at two other goddesses, shown here.

The Babylonian goddess Ishtar and the Hindu goddess Lakshmi, are both bearing flowers. This is another significant clue as to this goddess's identity.

Notice how the Babylonian goddess Ishtar (left) and the Hindu goddess Lakshmi (right) are both holding flowers

Ishtar, for whom eggs were painted with magical symbols, is otherwise known as Astarte to the Phoenicians, Esther to Christians and Ostara within various Middle Eastern cultures, whose lover was a rabbit. Regardless of the culture or the alias that is used to hide her true identity, she is without a doubt the goddess after whom the Christian holiday of Easter has been named. Knowing this, it is easy to understand why the flower associated with this goddess is the same flower associated with that holiday, known as the Lilly.

Lakshmi is holding a Lotus flower which is a species of Nymphaea. It is no coincidence that this species of Nymphaea or Lotus flower is also often referred to as a water Lily.[24] So what is the significance of this flower, the Lily?

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Fleur De Lis

In the Bible, there is a retelling of the story of the events of the Garden in Eden, hidden in the Song of Solomon. In this story the woman, representing Eve connects her lover, representing Adam, with lilies all throughout the narrative.

In verse 16 of chapter 2, she states he feeds among the lilies. In chapter 5 verse 13, she compares his lips to lilies. In chapter 6 verse 2, she states that he gathers lilies. Again in chapter 6 verse 3 she states that he feeds among the lilies. Lilies, therefore, or more accurately*, what they represent*, play a highly-significant role in every facet of the life of Adam. This is because, as botanists discovered in 2006, the Lily or Blackberry Lily or Leopard Lily, based on evidence from molecular DNA sequencing, were discovered to actually be part of the genus Iris Domestica. In other words, Lilies are Irises.

This does not have much significance at first glance, however, when we couple this information with the facts previously pointed out about the symbolism represented within the code of DNA, the Lily reference makes more sense.

The object connected to Adam or more specifically to his rib, as I've already pointed out, was the six-sided molecule called the Pyran or Phosphate. This genetic material, however, as we've already seen, is symbolized by the hexagon on the North pole of Saturn or hell, from whence it came. When we look down at the planet Saturn as it is surrounded by its rings, it appears to us as an eye, where the center is the pupil, (also meaning an apprentice or student) and the rings are the irises.

When we understand these symbols we can also understand the real reason that Adam, in the Song of Solomon in the Bible, was connected to the Lilies or Irises. This allegorical picture connecting Adam to the Lillies (or Irises) has not been painted for us because Adam was literally walking in a field of flowers, but rather because his rib, meaning the Ribose molecule that was unlawfully taken from him, was unlawfully spliced or connected to the molecule that these Irises, Lillies or goddesses represent; the light bearer, Lucifer.

To clarify, the light itself, which is a false light, brought by this light bearer or bringer of light as she is called, is simply another shrouded reference to the molecule that was added to Adam's Rib (which represented RIBose or RNA) in order to create DNA for the purpose of bringing about the ability to procreate or reproduce through intercourse. That light is one and the same as the Pyran, also called the Phosphate, otherwise known as Lucifer.

The splicing of this Pyran, fire or light as it is called, to the Rib of Adam, occurred when Lucifer, disguised as the Lord God or Jehovah, hidden behind the Tetragrammaton of the letters YHWH, saw that it was not good (for her purposes) that Adam was separate, as we've seen previously. It was at this point, while coveting the role of Creator for herself, that she literally spliced herself to this man that she had created, preventing him, as we've seen from the Sumerian definition of the word alone, from ascending.

The reason she is also referred to as a Lily, is because she is the one also referred to as Lilith in the book of Isaiah 34:14. The name used in that verse is Screech Owl and is translated as Liylit, pronounced Lilith. The meaning of the name Lilith, however is a demon that takes the form of a beautiful woman, once again confirming the fact that Lucifer was indeed a beautiful female, as shown before.

What took place between Lilith (Lucifer) and Adam is also told in the allegory relaying the events spoken of in Genesis chapter two.

Here we are told that Adam was placed into a deep sleep by this same figure, known as the Lord God in that chapter, at which time his rib was taken and spliced to her own fiery molecule referred to as Molec in the Bible. This is also the reason we are told in the Law or Code in the Bible, for instance in Leviticus 18:21 that the descendants of Adam, known as Israelites, were not to pass their children through the fires of Molec. The word through, however, means from or in front of. This might sound strange, however, when we read in Isaiah 14:13 that Lucifer's plan was to ascend above the stars of God, we can understand why she, as the writer of the Code or Law would give that ancient mandate. She wanted to maintain that position in the hierarchy, just as the ancient legends tell us that Lilith insisted on remaining above Adam during intercourse forcing him into what she felt was a subservient position suitable for her worship; and this is a position that the secret societies of the world have helped her maintain.

When we know what to look for, it is easy to see the wide-spread worship of Lucifer by the use of this flower all throughout the world. The most common symbol of worship, referred to (not surprisingly) as the lily flower, is known in the French language as the Fleur De Lis. The Fleur De Lis is a stylized lily or iris used as a decorative symbol and is also known as the Flower de Luce,[25] as a blatant reference to the name Lucifer.

Fleur De Lis aka Flower de Luce

The Fleur De Lis is a symbol used prolifically throughout the world by secret societies and, like so many others, can be seen everywhere we look. It is used in royal symbolism and heraldry, the design of money, ancient and modern architecture and even Christian iconography.

It is written in Isaiah 29:15 and 16:

[15] Woe unto them that seek deep to hide their counsel from the LORD, and their works are in the dark and they say, Who seeth us? And who knoweth us? [16] Surely your turning of things upside down shall be looked upon as the potter's clay*: for shall the work* (man) say of him that made it, He made me not? Or shall the thing framed (man) say of him that framed it, He had no understanding?

What these verses tell us is that long ago, there were those who corrupted the truth by turning it upside down (Heb. hophek from the root hafak meaning to overturn or reverse) and that this reversal would surely come to be looked upon as the potter and the clay; and this potter and her clay, just as they are found at the beginning of the Bible, comprise the crooked foundation upon which Christianity as well as other religions, such as Islam, have been built.

Within this book and others that I've written, I've shown that in our world today, the Potter, known in the Bible by the letters YHWH, incorrectly called Yahweh or Jehovah by millions who have been taught an incorrect meaning of those 4 letters called the Tetragrammaton, is actually the one known as Lucifer, hidden behind many other names, including Mary. The name Mary, once again, means The Rebellion. Knowing this, we can understand that Esu (Jesus), the son of Mary, was literally born out of The Rebellion. This is why Mary is often depicted in a shrouded manner as an actual part of the female anatomy, as we see in the following pictures.

Mary depicted as an actual vagina. Notice how her feet are on the head of Esu, who we are told is one and the same as the Father in John 10:30. Yet another depiction of the position of authority she has taken over him in her rebellion.

As I mentioned previously, those complicit in this rebellion were referred to as the Anunaki and were the same as the fallen angels who were referred to as a third of the stars of heaven in Revelation chapter 12 that left with Lucifer in that passage . Believing her tale that they could be 'gods' if they obeyed her, they wore her Fleur De Lis crown as a sign of allegiance as we see below:

Notice The Fleur De Lis Atop The Crown As A Sign Of Worshipping The Mother And Goddess Lucifer.

This unlawful overthrow and rebellious reversal of authority which began in the heavens and now manifests itself on earth, was allowed by the Creator as a form of punishment for Lucifer and those who followed her. As such, it has become the foundation of not only Christianity but other religions as well, dating back thousands of years. Unbeknownst to the adherents of modern-day religions, all of which stem from more ancient forms of worship, these doctrines have replaced the original Way of the true Creator, the Father, with the way of his rebellious bride, Lucifer or Mary known as the queen of heaven within Christianity. This is the real reason why Christians are known as The Bride, today. Make no mistake.

Esu was the clay, molded into this material existence by the Mother, represented by the letters YHWH and called the Lord God in the Bible. His name was initially Adam, as we are told in I Corinthians 15:45 where we read:

The first man Adam was made a living soul, the last Adam was made a quickening spirit.

It is difficult for Christians to believe that Esu was a man that was actually made or born, but this is also what the Bible states. We read this in many places where he is referred to as the Son of Man, such as Mark 14:41, Mark 14:62, John 1:51, John 3:13, John 3:14, John 5:27,

John 6:27, John 6:53, John 12:34, John 13:31 and many more places.

But what does this actually mean?

The name Jesus is not, nor has it ever been an accurate name. The letter 'J' had not yet even been added to the alphabet at the time of the writing of the books which now contain that name and was not added until several hundred years later. Neither is the name describing this character Yashua or Yahushua from the Hebrew language. Those are simply descriptions meaning the wealth of Yah or the Salvation of Yah, as a reference to the wealth or salvation of the one hidden behind the tetragrammaton YHWH, whose identity we've already seen.

The oldest reference to this name comes from the Sumerian texts when it speaks of the son of God who was cut open at the crossing of a great planet so his blood could be used for the creation of man. This is precisely where the New Testament allegorical version of Esu being killed on the cross comes from, when his blood was also used to anoint man, as the Christian doctrines state. This is why the name Jesus was used in the more modern-day telling of this story and why it was twisted, like our DNA, which was created at that same time. Jesus is a reference to ESU from the oldest known written language of Sumerian.

ESU is a combination of the letter E and the logogram SU, together which comprise the name ESU. E in the Cuneiform means Temple and SU means Anoint. This is a description telling us that there was literally an anointing of a genetic nature that took place in order to build this temple; and just as I've shown many times, this was done by the fallen angels or Anunaki who were known in the Sumerian, Arabic and other languages as the Djinn, Gin or Gen.

Having this information provides a much deeper and more meaningful understanding of why the particular name was given to the first book of the Bible in which this story of man's creation is relayed to us and also gives us a much clearer picture of what was really going on, in Genesis.

The reason that Genesis is spelled the way it is, is because its letters were compiled by the same ones who, as you'll soon see, split and then rebuilt the Word, meaning Esu, in the beginning, which is the meaning of Bershit, the Hebrew word for Genesis. Like our two-sided, double-helix DNA and the two-sided Bi-ble which also means of two, the word Genesis is a fusion of two words; the Word or Way, both names of Esu and the Way or Word of another, which was spliced to it.

The prefix GEN is a logogram in the Sumerian language, the language from which much of Hebrew was actually derived, as I've shown many times and means axe head as a reference to the metaphoric axe with which Esu, the first Adamic tree, was felled. This is the same axe head spoken of in II Kings chapter 6 where it tells us that the Sons of God, a reference to the fallen angels, were felling trees.

The suffix ESIS is from the Latin and actually is the plural version of the words ESU or ESUS which means to consume. This does not make a lot of sense at first glance until we refer to the story of the Last Supper in Matthew chapter 26 and Mark chapter 14 in which the disciples are metaphorically eating Esu's body and drinking his blood in the form of bread and wine.

This consumption was being engaged in by the disciples and the word disciple is yet another play on several fragments of words that have been spliced or mixed in the Engl-ish or angel-man language, those of di-sci-ple.

The word di means two, the word sci is a Latin prefix which means to cut, and is where we get the word science. The suffix ple is the same as the suffix ble as in Bi-ble, both of which mean of, from or fold. The disciples were in the sheep fold of Esu, the shepherd as he is called in John 10:11 and 14 and were cut from or away from Him.

The allegory of the Last Supper is simply another way of telling us that there was an ancient division at which time 2 were cut from 1, as it states in Genesis. It further helps us understand that those who were divided from him, did so by taking the genetic essence that was cut from his body (described as the bread and wine) and placing it or splicing it into their own; and this is the real reason that Genesis was chosen as the name of the first book of the Bi-ble.

The name Genesis is a mixing or splicing of the Sumerian logogram GEN and the Latin word ESIS, showing us that the fallen angels known as the Gen or Gin, who were led by Lucifer, hidden behind the letters YHWH, were literally making or cloning many ESIS' out of one ESU. We can see this in the graphic below:

This mixing of words might seem strange at first to those who have been indoctrinated into the teachings of modern-day linguistics or to those who have strict religious beliefs who adhere to such false doctrines as the inerrancy of the Bible and others. This is certainly not the case with the Bible in its current form. It is full of errors and mistranslations as I and many others have proven many, many times.

This long-term mixing and secret manipulation of the words within the Bible and other texts, however, should come as no surprise to anyone who is awake and understands firstly that we live in Mystery Babylon and secondly, knows the meaning of that word, Babylon.

We are warned of this throughout the Bible as in the book of Jeremiah and Revelation 18:4 where we are told to come out of her so we do not partake of her sins and suffer her plagues. This is actually a mandate not to mix with the philosophies, ideals and systems, including the religious systems of Babylon; and we see this in the definition of the word Babylon, itself which is from the root word Babel in the Greek language and means *to confuse by mixing.

This is exactly why, as anyone who is honest understands, the Bible is confusing, as it offers contradictory statements all throughout. Theologians and Pastors argue that it is simple to understand not because it actually is, but because that is what they have been taught to say based on verses such as Ephesians 3:24 which implies that by reading the words of Paul, who alleged to have a revelation, one can understand the mystery of Christ. This, however, like so many other verses woven into the Bible, is not true. What one ends up understanding when reading most of Paul's books, is the doctrines of Christianity, not the truth of the Way taught by Esu. I've shown reasons for this previously.

The secrets of life have been hidden. When the disciples asked Esu why he spoke to the crowds with shrouded parables, he stated in Matthew 13:11 - 17:

Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given*. For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that he hath. Therefore speak I to them in parables: because* they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand*. And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which saith,* By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand and seeing ye shall see, and shall not perceive: For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed*... But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and* your ears, for they hear. For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

As you can see, this is quite a contrast from the statement Paul made that the mystery of Christ can be understood simply by reading his words. Pastors and Theologians will argue the merits of Paul's words all day long and go to great lengths to prove that what I am presenting is simply a mis-interpretation, but they are absolutely wrong. This, as you can see has nothing whatsoever to do with interpreting anything. It is simply a comparison to show the contrast between the words of Esu, the Chief or Master of the Builders and those of Paul, the Masterbuilder. The reason that Pastors and Theologians do not understand these things is because they have chosen to love and defend the doctrines of the Masterbuilder rather than love and defend the truth of the Master of the Builders; another fulfillment of the warning of II Thessalonians 2:11 which says:

...they received not the love of the truth that they might be saved and for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie.

What better technique to deceive the world than to weave such a warning into the very words of a book attributed to Paul, himself in order to make the reader believe that the saving of their soul was contingent upon believing his words! This is one of hundreds of examples showing why it is so difficult for people to logically separate the truth from the lies within the Bible. It is not written in a logical fashion and the method of its construction, largely for the purpose of deception, is based on mixing the truth with lies, as Esu warned.

Those who wrote most of the Bible this way are the same ones who blended the DNA. (I speak about this further in The Red Dragon and the Sheep, The Tribulation and other books as well as at the Inner Circle at www.InnerCircle.us.)

This is why the Bi-ble was written. It is a guide book or instruction manual comprised of nice-sounding but leaven-filled doctrines, written for the purpose of training those who have been genetically crafted in a two-sided fashion with that same leaven called the leaven of the Pharisees. Paul, the founder of Christianity, according to his own words in Acts 23:6, 26:5 and Phillipians 3:5 was a Pharisee. This is why Esu warned about the leaven that the Pharisees and Scribes taught, over and over again, such as in the book of Matthew chapter 23 where he warned about them seven times in a row and called their doctrines hypocrisy.

This fact, make no mistake, is why one of the primary accusation against Christianity is that it is hypocritical. Filled with leaven, as Esu warned, how could it be otherwise? This is also why it warns in 1 Cor. 5:6 and Galatians 5: 9 that a little leaven puffs the entire lump. The word lump is Phyrama in the Greek and literally means a mixed mass. Again we see the idea of mixing, as a reference to Mystery Babylon and what this is telling us is that the leaven upon which Christianity has been built infects the mixed masses, which is precisely what has happened as Christianity has spread in America and around the world at large.

It is unfortunate that these teachings are what comprise the religious system in Mystery Babylon. Many churches think they are extracting themselves from this leaven by separating themselves denominationally, but the fact is that those doctrines are viruses and denominational schisms or new church plants only further the infection. The cure, just as Esu stated, is to know and follow the truth.

When the pieces of this ancient puzzle are put together, as I have been doing over the years throughout my various books, a grand scheme of epic proportions can be seen, quite clearly.

Over the millennia, since the time when the nefarious plans to create mankind were conceived in the mind of Lucifer, it has been necessary to deceive and distract the world, wholesale, to that end. Just as any plant that is potted needs time to take root and be nourished so it can grow, so too man, himself needed to be given time to grow, according to the plans of the Potter, as the one hidden behind the Tetragrammaton YHWH in the Bible is called; and this has required a great, long-term deception, much of which has been possible due to the instruction manual called the Bi-ble, largely written and edited by those who have propagated this deception.

The fact that the Bible is largely a guide book for Luciferian rule can be seen in the Fleur De Lis on many old holy books and Bibles, such as those shown below:

Fleur De Lis On The Cover Of A French Book Owned By Henry VIII Describing The Holy Land

If humanity had been given full disclosure about our true beginnings and therefore able to recognize our maker for who she was, we, like the fallen angels who also contracted themselves into this grand scheme without being given full disclosure, would have either not complied or at least would have been able to choose.

The nefarious nature of this grand scheme necessitated that deception be used to replace the truth of the Way of the Father, the true Supreme Creator, which they knew would lead to humanity's freedom and ultimately sabotage this plan. This deception has been carried out through many devices including the political ideologies, religious doctrines, educational curriculum, financial constructs and more.

Those who have knowingly aligned themselves with this agenda can be found in every facet of society and are called by many names including Illuminists (members of the Illuminati), Hermeticists or Master Builders, the name of the highest degree within Freemasonry. This is why Paul, the writer of most of the New Testament in the Bible, referred to himself in 1 Corinthians 3:10 as a Masterbuilder. He is the only one in the Bible to use that name and is also the actual founder of the religion of Christianity, itself.

Moreover, history tells us that the translation of the King James Bible was done by another Hermeticist when King James enlisted the services of Francis Bacon. Bacon was a known member of the John Dee's Society, which was simply another Hermetic offshoot of Freemasonry.

These individuals and groups have gone to great lengths over the millennia to distract the world with their concocted wars, manufactured famines, false flag events, religious factions, monetary problems and by simply adding to the responsibilities of everyday life. By doing this they have provided mankind with false paradigms regarding every aspect of this existence we call life, in order that the plans of the fallen ones, led by Lucifer, the queen of heaven, might come to fruition to enable her, as we are told in Isaiah 14:13 to exalt her throne above the stars of the true Creator.

CHAPTER TWELVE

The Stars

When we understand what, exactly these stars are, this scenario makes much more sense.

We've seen that the Phosphate or Pyran known as the light and represented by the Great Pyramid, is a symbol of the six-sided molecule fused to the Rib or Ribose of Adam by Lucifer and the Anunaki. This is why the Great Pyramid is missing the capstone. That capstone was a symbol representing the stone of fire, rib or ribose molecule of Esu, the first Adam, which was rejected as the standard by those same builders who proceeded to unlawfully and rebelliously build upon it the temple of man, in their own way. (See Mk. 12:10, Lk 20:17 etc.) This is why, as I explained earlier, they built that structure. What I've not yet explained is that a Ribose molecule is five-sided and shaped like…a star.

These stars within the DNA of all life forms, are those above which Lucifer has raised herself; and this is why she wants to maintain that superior position and why she issued the mandate to not do away with (Heb. abar) her molecule, called Molec in Leviticus 18:21, ensuring the integrity of her newly-created genetic structure known as DNA.

What you have been learning through the explanations of all of the symbolism and through the unraveling of the words that have been used to hide the truth from the world for millennia, are the real reasons that the ancient borders of Israel have been hidden from public view, as I stated at the beginning of the book.

When we understand that the god worshipped by Israel and the unwitting adherents of their manufactured religion of Judeo-Christianity, is Lucifer, hidden by the lying Jewish Scribes behind the letters Y-H-W-H, that the line of demarcation of the original border of Israel was marked by the Great Pyramid, built there by that same god to represent her molecule and that the symbol of the six-pointed star that represents Israel is a symbol of the star of their god Molec, again representing her molecule placed above the stars as a sign of her usurping of the Father's authority, we can then understand the true Identity of Israel.

The Great Pyramid At Giza With An Eye As It Is Pictured On Our Dollar Bill, A Tool Of Intercourse, Which Is Also The Legal Term For Commerce. The word igi Means Eye In Sumerian And igigi Is A Name Given To The Fallen Ones In The Sumerian Creation Story The Enuma Elish. This Is Why An Eye Sits Atop The Pyramid On The Dollar Bill. It Is A Symbol Of The Fact That The Fallen Ones (The Builders) Have Taken The Place Of Esu, The Stone That They Rejected.

Israel has been the geographic location of more chaos, more contention, more incessant war and more upheaval than any country or group of people in the history of the world. This fact alone should give one pause to question the Christian doctrine of the Jews being the chosen people of God, or at least question to which god that doctrine is truly referring.

Furthermore, with the wealth of evidence that has been provided, the elephant in the room becomes the relationship between Israel and America.

Since Israel became a nation in 1948, more American presidents have expressed an ardent intention to financially, politically and militarily protect that country more than any other. Within Christianity, it is widely held that the reason for this iron-like relationship is due not only to the belief that Israel represents the chosen people of God, called Jews, but also because of the fact that the God of the Bible strongly warns nations against turning their back on Israel. We see this warning issued in Genesis 12:3 where the Lord God states:

I will bless those who bless you and curse those who curse you and in you will all of the families of the earth be blessed.

In Isaiah 60:12 we read in regards to Israel:

For the nation and kingdom that will not serve you shall perish; those nations shall be utterly laid waste.

Numbers 24:9 states about Israel:

Blessed are those that bless you and cursed are those that curse you.

Isaiah 41:11 tells us:

Behold, all who are incensed against you shall be put to shame and confounded; those who strive against you shall be as nothing and shall perish.

And there are more verses that express similar sentiment wholeheartedly embraced by Christianity.

These mandates, however, were issued by the same god of the Bible that was previously hidden behind the letters YHWH, whose identity I have now exposed. Knowing the source of these statements, it is imperative as moral individuals that we question their validity as well as the agenda of the United States government and any other government that has chosen to uphold them.

Here are some examples of the United States position on Israel, expressed by various presidents over the years.

Jimmy Carter stated, We have a special relationship with Israel. It is absolutely crucial that no one...ever doubt that our number one commitment in the Middle East is to protect the right of Israel to exist...

George H.W. Bush made this statement regarding the United States relationship with Israel; *Ties uniting our two countries can never be broken.

Bill Clinton remarked, *America and Israel share a special bond. Our relationship is unique among all nations.

George W. Bush stated in regards to the American-Israeli bond, *These ties that have made us natural allies will never be broken.

There are many other quotes by American presidents regarding the inextricable link between the two countries, but perhaps the strongest expression has come from president Barack Hussein Obama, otherwise known by his real name Barry Soetoro. Obama (Soetoro) has stated, America's comittment to Israel's security is unshakable and our friendship with Israel is deep and enduring. We are bound to Israel because of the Interests that we share...the new frontiers of science that can light the world. I'm a stalwart friend of Israel. Its security is sacrosanct.

So, it becomes obvious that America has a significant and almost eerie bond with Israel, but without going into detail about the historical legends that trace America's heritage to Israel through the diaspora or via the Caucasus mountains (from which the word caucasian is derived), I will simply tell you, if you haven't figured it out by now, that Israel is quite literally not only a representation of Lucifer, but as such, is one-and-the-same as the mother of Esu (Jesus), otherwise known as Mary. To put this into perspective, let's look at the symbolism expressed in the flags of both Israel and the United States.

Israel is the only country that flies a flag with a single, blue, six-sided star nestled between two blue horizontal lines.

Those blue lines represent the Nile and Euphrates rivers for reasons that we've already seen, but they also represent Nucleotides connecting the two sides of DNA, which are the rungs on the ladder in a dream that Jacob (Israel) had in Genesis 28.

This ladder, a symbol of DNA, is what enabled angels to travel to heaven in his dream. What this dream is actually showing us, however is the Jewish belief that by building DNA, fallen angels will be able to use it as a genetic vehicle to return their house or temple, meaning the body to their original estate, heaven, which they lost during the rebellion; and the primary mechanism that will make this ascension possible, in their minds, is the molecule of Lucifer, called the Phosphate, Pyran or Molec. This is why they worship it and her, by flying her symbol on their flag.

This is also the real reason that Jacob's name was changed to Israel showing how, by aligning himself with this rejected or divorced bride and her philosophy of DNA, he has also taken her genetics within himself. (These same events are told in the story of the Ark of the Covenant which I explain in Name Changes And The Sacred Spiral Of The Ark.)

This same adulation of Lucifer's genetic building blocks is represented on the American flag by the color blue. America's flag also has more 5-sided stars than any other country.

This is not simply because those stars represent the 50 states, (another symbolic number representing a multiple of 5, the number of sides of a ribose molecule), but more importantly because America represents the rib to which Lucifer's molec-ule was attached; just as Israel has been attached to the United States. This is the true bond mentioned previously in the presidential quotes. The bond that holds the DNA base together is called a hydrogen bond and in reality is a very weak type of bond. Regardless of the strong sentiment expressed about Israel within Christianity or the seemingly permanent connection America has with Israel, it, like the bonds that hold DNA together, in reality is quite weak in the grand scheme of things and like that same genetic bond, will be broken in the days ahead.

Through this symbolism and much more, America's rulers are literally acknowledging their rebellious mother, Israel or Lucifer and are showing those with eyes to see that they recognize their genetic bond with her and their role in her protection. This commitment, however, regardless of Christian doctrine that states otherwise, is not righteous, which is why it will be undone by the Father, the true Creator.

Lucifer, just like Israel, is a rebellious bride who went after other lovers and was unfaithful to the Father, the true Creator. As such, just as we are told in Jeremiah 3:8, Israel was divorced permanently. Here we read:

And I saw, when for all the causes whereby backsliding Israel committed adultery I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce*;*

At that time, Lucifer was allowed to go her own way, which was the road to hell, or as we've seen, helel, (referred to as the serpent in Genesis chapter 3), as a representation of her ideal of DNA by whose knowledge she was deceived.

America is a present-day representation of the other lovers after whom she lusted or, just as accurately, to whom she has attached herself, as a type of parasite as we've seen previously, which needs the host of Nucleic Acid to survive.

Parasites can cause tremendous problems within the human body and usually go unnoticed due to their insidious nature. Because of this characteristic, many people die because they never know their body has been infiltrated, that their genetics have been invaded and because of this, their symptoms go unnoticed and therefore, untreated.

Today, America, appearing strong on the outside, is in a weakened state internally. The country has been deteriorating financially, politically, socially, morally and in many other ways for a long time and her suffering is largely due to this bond with Israel to whom the government, without taxpayer consent, gives billions of dollars as well as military equipment, every year.

America is also a representation of the beast upon which she sits (See Revelation 17:3) and over which she, Lucifer or Israel rules; just as a parasite can insidiously overtake its host without the host fully realizing that it has happened or recognizing the extent of the damage that has been done.

To sum up America's relationship with Israel, it is one that perpetuates an ancient rebellion against the Father. It is a wicked endeavor, spun in the media, perpetuated on the political stage and justified by the use of the Biblical narrative within Judeo-Christianity which portrays it as a holy union sanctioned by the true Creator, when it is actually a marriage contract with Lucifer. It is one of the primary constructs that is keeping the world in bondage and preventing the inhabitants from knowing the truth which would otherwise enable them to return to their true Creator, the Father, from whom they were stolen, long, long ago.

We have been infected and this infection is due to our attachment to Lucifer's Pyran, Molec and those ideals, beliefs, doctrines, constructs or countries which it represents. This infection is what I refer to as Pyranosis; a condition which can only be remedied by the true Great Physician, the Father.

Those who do not know these ancient secrets continue to create curriculum and doctrines that replace the truth. This puts teachers, pastors, theologians, scholars and others to whom they are taught into a crooked frame of mind, unwittingly bending their teachings, twisting their sermons or manipulating their journal articles to fit those same bent parameters of accepted thinking. When any thesis is molded in order to fit into a crooked framework, it has the same subconscious effect on those listening to it or reading it, whether they realize it or not, just as a crooked picture does to those viewing it. The problem is, that in our time we've come to accept the crooked stories and have come to actually believe they are straight.

Sifting through the pages of fables and doctrines and cutting the truth away from the layers of lies that have been piled on top of it for millennia is a difficult task, but can also prove to be quite rewarding. This is the same type of cutting that needs to happen to free the rib (RNA) from the hexagonal fire (DNA) of Lucifer to which it has been attached.

This hexagon can be seen in many cultures throughout history, which is a testament to the fact that these genetic and spiritual secrets have been woven into society, all along the way for thousands of years. Let's take a look at how this pyran has been depicted from ancient sources, prior to its modern-day use by Israel.

This Hexagram Is The Sigil Of John Dees Who Founded The Hermetic (Freemasonic) John Dees Society, The Same Society Of Which Francis Bacon, The Translator Of The King James Bible, Was A Member.

There are many surface or exoteric explanations for this hexagon, such as the idea which asserts that it is a representation of a merging of the male and the female or the idea that it is an expression of heaven coming down to earth or, as represented by its six sides, that it is a representation of the biblical Mark of the Beast and these are all true, however, as with all esoteric symbolism, biblical or otherwise, there are always, without exception, much deeper meanings that are hidden from society, that hold the truth.

What I've explained here is the deeper more meaningful reason that Israel has chosen to fly this ancient symbol on their flag. It is a symbol of the God they worship, whose name, unbeknownst to most Christians and Jews, is Lucifer, the god of this world who poses as the true Creator, having temporarily usurped his authority.

The constructs, however, built by Lucifer, the coverer, will soon crumble and man will be free to return or ascend to his true Creator, where he will find rest for his soul, as stated in Jeremiah 6:16 and Matthew 11:29, that was stolen.

These constructs, built on a foundation of lies, which will be dismantled include Judeo-Christianity, the religion that usurped ‘The Way’ of Esu, Islam which also unwittingly worships

Lucifer and Saturn in various ways, the banking system called intercourse, which utilizes usury and fiat currency to enslave the people (this is why the logogram 'Gu', (which we would pronounce Jew) means 'banks' in Sumerian), the hexagonal molecule attached to our DNA, called DAN, the serpent in the way and an adder of Genesis 49:17, because it was added to man, as well as the Great Pyramid, itself. We can look for all of these constructs to crumble in the coming days, including the relationship of America and Israel, which symbolically represents the fusion of these two molecules.

These things are going to crumble as a sign that the ultimate dismantling is about to occur. That is the dismantling of life as we know it. This is precisely why ESU stated in Matthew 24:2, Mark 13:2, Luke 19:44 and Luke 21:6, while taking his disciples through the rooms of the temple, that in the time of the end, there would not be one stone upon another, as a shrouded reference to the dismantling of DNA.

Life as we know it, has been built upon a faulty foundation and will be brought to an end by the true, perfect Creator and his angels, just as prophesied; and when this happens on a genetic level, it will be one-and-the-same as what the Bible refers to as repentance.

Repentance is a military term. When soldiers march and the Sergeant yells ‘repent’, it is literally a command to turn on the heel and go in the opposite direction, from which they came. The word penta in Greek, however means five and the word re-penta-nce, literally refers to the returning or going back to the five, in reference to the RNA. That is our first estate.

Incidentally, the word sera in Greek means six which is why the word serpent or sera-penta, referred to as in the way in the above verse, is called such. It is a reference to the DNA which is currently an obstacle to mankind returning to the Creator and His Way.

Most of the time, the contexts given in the Bible and other ancient texts, are allegorical but are accepted as literal, because of skewed doctrines that have been created because of traditional interpretations. Sadly, these doctrines, in turn, over time have unfortunately replaced the truth.

Cutting through the pages of fables and sifting the truth from the layers of lies that have been piled on top of it for millennia is a difficult task, but can also prove to be quite rewarding, as you've hopefully seen from reading this book.

To discover more secrets that I've uncovered from many years over tens of thousands of hours of in-depth research and to see what truths have been hidden beneath the pages of the Bible and other ancient texts for thousands of years, go to www.PaxeonPublishing.com There you will discover a literal treasure trove of information that is literally not available from any other source.

For a limited time, you can also acquire all of my works at a discount and receive some very nice bonuses as well by going to www.PaxeonPublishing.com/Specials.html

I wish you many blessings now and in the future and pray that the Father holds you in his hand all through the coming days, until you are once again safe by His side.

"And you will know the truth and the truth will make you free." – John 8:32

FINAL NOTE

My Personal Invitation To You

There is a great deal more that I would like to share with you. If you have an interest in learning about these issues and much more and in greater detail, consider this your personal invitation from me to become an Apprentice at the Inner Circle where I teach. To become an Apprentice, you can simply go to www.InnerCircle.us

I want you to know that I take the exegesis that I do very seriously and usually spend many hours nearly every day to uncover these things that have been intentionally hidden for thousands of years. I do not say that to impress you, but to impress upon you the fact that the information I am sharing with you is of the highest quality and is insight that you will find nowhere else.

If you have not already read my first book, Blueprint For Bondage, you may want to do that, also. It has now been read in over 60 countries and has been highly acclaimed as a classic. The content is different from what you've read here, it is considered a very enlightening work and I think you would enjoy it immensely. You can find out more at www.PaxeonPublishing.com

I appreciate you taking the time to read this book and I truly hope that what you've learned has been a blessing to you and that you have found it enlightening.

Most importantly, however, I hope that it has helped you draw closer to the Creator, providing you with a sense of peace, knowing that He is in control and will cross all barriers to be with His children who He loves very much.

We live in very perilous times and things in our world are only going to become worse on many levels until the Father returns to reclaim what was stolen. (You can see a number of Preparedness Solutions I've provided on the next few pages as resources to help you during this time.)The heightened chaos is simply an attempt on the part of our captors to persuade you to accept the solutions that they, themselves will provide for you, one of which will be the Rapture which I expose in my book The Secret Rapture found at www.PaxeonPublishing.com. The solutions they offer, however, are only meant to further deceive you and to continue your incarceration.

The true Creator is fully aware of those tactics and everything else that is going on, including that thing, whatever it may be that you might think He would never even care about. This is the reason for the truth in this book. The Father loves you and looks forward to being with you again.

Until next time, be encouraged, be blessed and be prepared by knowing the truth that will make you free.
